LONDON HUNTS DEAD, WOUNDED

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—Rescue squads dug today for the dead, the wounded and dying and uninjured persons entombed in one of the worst overnight bombardments in 40 days of continuous air siege of London while Nazi planes roved the coasts of England, Scotland and Wales.

The air and home security ministries, calling the night attack "widespread and quite wanton," said the number killed as greater than in other recent raids, but "considerably" less than in early September, when the German air force first laid siege to London, and damage likewise "was not so great."

The greatest of one-day casualties in September were 400 dead and 1400 injured Sept. 9, according to official estimate.

Despite widespread reports of the presence of Nazi raiders by daylight, the air and home ministries said "there has been hardly any enemy activity over this country today."

FEED ENTOMBED BY TUBES

"Bombs are reported only in one coast town in Scotland and at one point in the west country," the late afternoon communique said. "No damage or casualties are reported."

In London, rescue workers, digging in frenzy at tons of masonry which turned several air raid shelters into tombs, siphoned liquid food to those buried alive to sustain them until they could be reached.

Almost without pause the Germans followed up with fresh thrusts here, and near Liverpool, the great port on the west coast, as well as along the south and east coasts and over coastal regions of Scotland and Wales.

In midafternoon the raiders penerated defenses to London, where two alarms developed in less than 30 minutes.

Even while the all clear was sounding after the first alert there was heavy fire from the city's outer ring of batteries. The steady all clear note of the siren scarcely had died away before the modulated wail again sounded the danger signal.

SCHOOL SHELTER RAZED

A schoolhouse used last night as an air raid shelter had been leveled. The biggest delayed action bomb yet dropped on the city lay a slumbering menace to a widely known building. A famous London square was piled with the debris of shattered buildings. A whole block af apartment buildings was

MATCHING NAZI TROOP MOVEMENTS—As German Army units filter into Rumania, reports from the Balkans tell of troop movements by the Soviet . . . as the theater of war threatens to shift from Britain to Rumania momentarily. REPORT RUSSIA, TURKEY NEARING ANTI-AXIS PACT

BUDAPEST, Oct. 16 (AP)—Reports that Turkey and Soviet Russia are near agreement on a military alliance designed to block axis penetration into the Near East spread through the Balkans today as Germany poured more troops and equipment into Rumania.

Bulgarian Communist sympathizers in Sofia, where the report originated, said resident Ismet Inonu of Turkey was expected to announce the pact to the national assembly November 1.

Turkish government circles maintained silence but the inspired press strongly asserted that neither Turkey nor her "close friend" Greece would be "intimidated" by Germany or by anyone else.

"Turkey has no intention of changing existing friendships, is determined to defend her independence and is still peacefully inclined," said the newspaper Ulus, Turkish governmental party organ.

Turkey counts among her friends both Russia and Britain.

Growing anxiety in Turkey over the Balkan situation vas reflected in reports from Istanbul that the government had chartered three steamers to speed removal of its Nationals from Rumania.

Greece also showed its concern by calling to the colors engineering and communication specialists of the class of 1936.

That action coincided with reports that several shiploads of German soldiers had joined Italian forces in Albania.

Fascist circles in Rome denied any German soldiers were in Albania.

Soviet Envoy, Turkish Chiefs Have Parley

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 16 (AP)—President Inonu received the new Soviet ambassador today in the presence of the Turkish army chief of staff.

The meeting was held amid unofficial reports here that Turkey would go to the aid of Greece if the latter were attacked. There were still other reports from Sofia, Bulgaria, last night that Turkey and Russia might negotiate a mutual assistance pact, but confirmation was lacking.

A foreign office spokesman was reported to have made the statement that if Greece were attacked Turkey would intervene as an ally of Britain. The British have treaty obligations to defend Greece and the British and Turks have a defensive alliance.

Nazis Rush Planes And Submarines to Base in Black Sea

BUCHAREST, Oct. 16 (AP)—Great shipments of knocked down seaplanes and submarines were reported en route today to Rumania from Germany to a Black Sea naval training base which will be in charge of Italian experts.

The Bucharest government was reported authoritatively to be preparing 100 apartments in the heart of the city as living quarters for members of the German general military staff as well as for a large German economic delegation.

RED TROOPS FACE NAZIS

These further indications of the axis' growing economic and military sway over Rumania and her resources came today as large concentrations of German and Soviet Russian troops faced each other across the Danube river near the Rumanian port of Galati.

Nazi fighter planes maintained a constant patrol over Rumania's oil fields and the German newspaper mouthpiece, Tageblatt, remarked that the performance of German veteran pilots "proved their readiness for action wherever they may be needed."

The German forces at Galati were supported by several squadrons of aircraft and 300 heavy, medium and light tanks which rumbled into the port yesterday.

180,000 SOVIET TROOPS

Informed sources estimated the strength of the Red army troops on the Russian side of the frontier at 150,000 to 180,000 men.

It was understood the British government in London had left with Sir Reginald a decision as to his departure.

British Navy Bombs Dunkirk

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—British warships shelled the "invasion port" of Dunkirk on the French coast last night, setting large fires, and apparently causing great damage, the admiralty announced tonight.

A communique said:

"A naval bombardment of the port of Dunkirk was carried out by our forces last night. Fires were seen to have been caused and it is considered much damage resulted."

Dunkirk, now considered a base for the German army's preparations for an invasion of England, was the scene of the British army's dramatic withdrawal from the continent after the Battle of Flanders early in June.

TODAY . . . History Is Being Made

History is in the making before our eyes, today. At this very moment long lines of men between the ages of 21 and 35 are forming. They are waiting to register for the draft. When the long day is done, the pick of the male citizens of Massachusetts will have registered subject to call—upon demand—by the armed services of the nation. Yet today the United States is at peace.

So fast do the totalitarian nations move, so unexpected their attack, so varied their hatreds, we find it necessary to take this step. We cannot be caught unprepared. We must be ready for any eventuality.

Even though it means giving up homes . . .
Even though it means giving up jobs . . .
Even though it means giving up lives . . .
Our men will be ready.

But they and their mothers and their sweethearts are entitled to this consideration—the knowledge that their GOVERNMENT is ready. They must be adequately armed, adequately fed, and adequately clothed.

Their GOVERNMENT must be led by a man who is qualified:

To feed, to clothe and to arm these young men properly!
They're entitled to this much, at least!

MASSACHUSETTS knows that man

'Arm for Peace,' F.D. Pleads as Bay State Answers Draft Call

Sixteen million men today answered as one a warring world's challenge to the democratic way of living.

Throughout the 48 states of this nation free men swamped polling booths, schools and town halls to register for possible service in the military arms of the United States.

They came, not through fear, but united in a common purpose, to offer themselves to defend this country and all that its system of life symbolizes.

And to them and to all the nation came this message from President Roosevelt:

> "We prepare to keep the peace in this new world which free men have built for free men to live in."
>
> "The duty of this day has been imposed from without. Those who have dared to threaten the whole world with war—those who have created the name and deed of total war—have imposed on us and upon all free people the necessity of preparation for total defense."

Boston's and Massachusetts' answer to the call for the first peacetime registration for conscription in the history of this nation was echoed in all communities.

THRONG FANEUIL HALL

The Red, White and Blue flew from flagstaffs in city and town halls, public buildings and schools to mark this historic day.

Boston, with the eyes of the nation upon it, set the pace for "R-DAY."

Anticipating that 105,000 men would register, later revising that number to 125,000, and this afternoon setting the maximum at a possible 175,000, Boston election officials called for additional volunteer registrants.

Three hundred municipal empoyes were dispatched from City Hall to various registration booths after officials were notified that more than 60,000 men had appeared by midday.

In Faneuil Hall, birthplace of American liberty, one hundred registrars and some twoscore substitutes, signed up several hundreds of men between the ages of 21 and 35 in the first few hours.

Outside the school buildings in West Roxbury, Brighton and South Boston, lines of men waiting to register, long before the established hour of 7 a. m., were so long that extra registrars were called.

First man to appear at the Faneuil Hall headquarters was Lawrence Heath Brady of Fort ave., Roxbury, public relations officer for the Salvation Army.

Home on a train from Salem, with but a few minutes to board another train to Brattleboro, Vt., Brady asked for the privilege of registering at the headquarters for North Enders and those who are out of town, temporarily staying in Boston.

20 MINUTES WORK

Chief Registrar Charles Donovan gave Brady one minute's leeway. At 6:59 a. m. this registrant gave his name. At 7:19, allowing the prescribed 20 minutes for the first step of the Selective Service Act, Brady walked from the hall.

Between the time that this first man had entered, the line of those

CHINESE-AMERICAN YOUTHS REGISTER AT QUINCY SCHOOL

Registrant Tells of Own Experience

By JOSEPH CARTER

So—I registered today.

Living in a town where the population is only 1366 made it easy one way—there were only four or five of the fellows in the Town Hall when I arrived. There were four registrars.

Driving down the twisting country roads, under the brilliant autumn foliage sparkling in the newly-risen sun, you don't think much about what's going on on the other side of the world. I didn't.

You don't think of bombing planes blasting cities and high speed tanks spitting disaster.

You don't think that this registering you're going through with may be the beginning of your part of a protest against a hard and bitter ideology that carries its messages inside time bombs.

REGISTRAR GRINS AT YOU

You turn in the drive to the colonial town hall—I did—and meet people you know, and after waiting about five minutes you sit down at a desk with a registrar. It's very pleasant in there, the sun on the polished oak desks—you've just had coffee—it's a lovely world.

No one's going to blow that town hall apart in the next five minutes.

The registrar grins at you.

"Hello, buddy," he says. "See you in camp." You grin back.

"You're not kidding," you say. But you are. You're kidding—now.

There's a huge replica of the registration card to be filled out on your half of the desk.

OVER IN FOUR MINUTES

"Well, I guess I know your name," he says. "No middle name, have you?"

"Nope."

"And, let's see, I guess I know your address ——"

It goes on. It took me four minutes, by the clock, and the registrar printed out everything except the signatures. I told him he only had to print out where it said "Print," but would he take my word for it?

So it's nothing. Just four minutes, just fill out a card, you go back out into that sparkling brisk fall sunlight. Someone comes up the walk whistling:

"You're In the Army Now—" and smiling.

You see, it isn't so bad. It seems not to be important. Or significant.

Or—could I be wrong?

Lynn's Mayor Registers, Asks For Class 1

First Massachusetts mayor to register for the draft today was Albert Cole, 34-year-old chief executive of Lynn.

Too young for service in the last World War, Mayor Cole told his registrar today:

"I'm ready. I'm physically fit. I want to be in Class I."

ANSWER CALL—Eager and ready to register for the nation's first peace-time conscription, these men were on hand even before the break of dawn today . . . lined up at the door of historic Faneuil Hall. When registration started at 7 a. m., hundreds of others had arrived . . . and again history was being made in the "Cradle of Liberty." Before nightfall some 650,000 Massachusetts young men will have registered.

Text of Roosevelt's Address

On this day more than sixteen million young Americans are reviving the three hundred year old American custom of the muster. They are obeying that first duty of free citizenship by which, from the earliest Colonial times, every able-bodied citizen was subject to the call for service in the national defense.

It is a day of deep and purposeful meaning in the lives of all of us. For on this day we Americans proclaim the vitality of our history, the singleness of our will and the unity of our nation.

PREPARE TO KEEP PEACE

We prepare to keep the peace in this new world which free men have built for free men to live in. The United States, a nation of one hundred and thirty million people, has today only about five hundred thousand—half a million—officers and men in Army and National Guard.

Other nations, smaller in population, have four and five and six million trained men in their armies. Our present program will train eight hundred thousand additional men this coming year and somewhat less than one million men each year thereafter. It is a program obviously of defensive preparation and of defensive preparation only.

Calmly, without fear and without hysteria, but with clear determination, we are building guns and planes and tanks and ships—and all the other tools which modern defense requires.

EFFECTIVE DEFENSE

We are mobilizing our citizenship, for we are calling on men and women and property and money to join in making our defense effective. Today's registration for training and service is the keystone in the arch of our national defense.

In the days when our forefathers laid the foundation of our democracy, every American family had to have its gun and know how to use it. Today we live under threats, threats of aggression from abroad, which call again for the same readiness, the same vigilance.

Ours must once again be the spirit of those who were prepared to defend as they built, to defend as they worked, to defend as they worshipped.

The duty of this day has been imposed upon us from without. Those who have dared to threaten the whole world with war—those who have created the name and deed of total war—have imposed upon us and upon all free peoples the necessity of preparation for total defense.

AN OPPORTUNITY

But this day not only imposes a duty; it provides also an opportunity—an opportunity for united action in the cause of liberty—an opportunity for the continuing creation on this contitnent of a country where the people alone shall be master, where the people shall be truly free.

To the 16 million young men who register today, I say that democracy is your cause—the cause of youth.

Demoracy is the one form of society which guarantees to every new generation of men the right to imagine and to attempt to bring to pass a better world. Under the despotisms the imagination of a better world and its achievement are alike forbidden.

Your act today affirms not only your loyalty to your country, but your will to build your future for yourselves.

JUSTICE TO SURVIVE

We of today, with God's help, can bequeath to Americans of tomorrow a nation in which the ways of liberty and justice will survive and be secure. Such a nation must be devoted to the cause of peace. And it is for that cause that America arms itself.

It is to that cause—the cause of peace—that we Americans today devote our national will and our national spirit and our national strength.

Auto Rates Unfair, Harrington Is Told

State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. J. Harrington was told bluntly today that the proposed compulsory auto insurance rates for 1941 were basically unfair, at a hearing held at the public works building in Nashua st.

More than 50 persons attended the hearing and one of the chief protests was voiced by Fred E. Hamblin, representing the Boston Automobile Club.

"The proposed 1941 rates offer no encouragement for a community to go out and do a good safety job," Hamblin declared. "The rates are basically unfair and are the same for heavy and light cars, with no consideration given to the new cars with modern safety equipment."

Hamblin advised that the first returns of a questionnaire survey being conducted by the Boston Automobile Club showed that 9000 motorists favor a merit system of insurance, against 982 who favored the present compulsory system.

"If the State Insurance Department served notice on motorists that their rates for 1941 would be doubled if they had bad accident records, it would have a tremendous effect upon car owners," Hamblin said.

Lester P. Morley, town counsel of Swampscott, argued that the splendid safety record of the town since 1937 should entitle the town to a lower rate in 1941.

Giles W. Halladay, chairman of the Agawam board of selectmen, protested an increase of $2.01 over the 1940 rate.

Sorrow Awaits Touring Bride

The first happiness of marriage and a honeymoon today will be turned into sorrow for Mrs. Robert Corson.

For state and local police through New England today are watching for the Nash sedan with Massachusetts registration plates number 5210 in which Mrs. Corson and the bridegroom to whom she was married only last Saturday night are touring.

When that car is stopped officers will tell Mrs. Corson that her father, John Hutchinson of Fernwood ave., Haverhill, who was a guest at her quiet marriage ceremony, is dead.

Hutchinson was stricken Monday with a heart attack and died in his sleep.

Tufts, Jackson Students Win Year's Awards

Three hundred Tufts and Jackson students were honored this morning as President Leonard Carmichael made the annual academic awards in Goddard Chapel.

Miss Caroline Barker of North Andover and Murray Kenny of Somerville shared signal honors as they shared the 1911 Prize scholarship given to the student in each college who has engaging personalities, and who has made most progress as measured both by academic record and by successful participation in extra-curricular activities.

This official recognition of Miss Barker as Jackson's "Miss Personality" adds to many other honors she has attained in scholarship, basketball, beauty contests, and as office holder in the athletic association, Pan-Hellenic Council, student council, and the Outing Club.

Cecile Berle

Miss Cecile Berle, of Reading, received high honors by being chosen to represent Jackson at Commencement and award of the Chi Omega scholarship. She is a member of the Tuftonian staff, the Tufts Dramatic society and won the freshman English prize three years ago.

Miss Justine Wells of Newburgh, N. Y., shared the Durkee Memorial Prize for outstanding work in chemistry, with Miss Ethel E. Bettoney of Wollaston, the work of the girls being of equal excellence.

The coveted Bennet Memorial Scholarship was awarded this year to Edward Dugger of West Medford who has attained national recognition in track.

Youth With Reverse Organs in Air Corps

Heart and vital organs on the right-hand side of his healthy 190-lb. body, a Back Bay recruit for the Air Corps was under scrutiny of amazed Army surgeons at Camp Devens today as he readily admitted he had been playing hide-and-seek with the American Medical Ass'n for seven years.

One of the rarest phenomena in medical annals, an adult who has escaped the usually fatal effects of misplaced heart, glands, liver and kidney, Pvt. Harold W. Johnson, Jr., of Dartmouth st., was busily engaged with his routine duties at Devens today 8 days after submitting to an examination which he avoided since 1933.

FOUND IN CHECK-UP

His mother, Mrs. Leona Johnson, told the American that she first became aware of her son's abnormality when he was two years ald. A family doctor discovered the rarity during a perfunctory check-up.

"When Walter was 13," Mrs. Johnson said today, "he was persuaded to go to City Hospital with a medical student. At the hospital the dozen specialists who were immediately called in frightened him and he was so upset by the experience he still feels the effects of it to this day.

"He has tried every means to avoid medical experts. The American Medical Association pleaded with him to submit to X-ray analysis and photographs to be printed in the national medical journals.

"But he's always managed to dodge them until now. He couldn't resist the call of his country and his desire to fly."

"This man was accepted in the U. S. Army inasmuch as the malposition of his heart did not interfere with the normal routine of life."

Dr. Few, Duke President, Dies

Dr. Few succeeded the late John C. Kilgo as president of Trinity College Nov. 10, 1910, before the wealthy Duke family endowed the Methodist institution, making it the Southeast's largest privately-endowed university.

He was a native of Greer, S. C. He was graduated from Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C., and at Harvard University he received the degrees of master of arts and doctor of philosophy.

Survivors include his widow, the former Miss Reamy Thomas, and four sons, William P. Few, Jr., Cleveland, O.; Lynne and Kendrick Few, Boston, Mass., and Randolph Few of Durham.

Everyone Happy, Cop Goes to Bed

For four Roslindale youngsters Registration Day was doubly enjoyable, for a Roslindale real estate agent it was a day of mixed emotions, but for a night police officer it was only a day of three hours less sleep.

First, William Young, eight; Robert St. Mary, seven; Lloyd Stuart, seven and his six-year-old sister, Ruth, all had the doy off from school because the school building was being used for registration.

Then, playing near thir homes on Bach t., they found a wallet containing $40. It had been lost by a real estate agent who did not give his name.

The children went to the home of Patrolman Stephen Simpson who was just going to bed. Simpson found the owner who gave each of the children $1.

And Officer Simpson went back to bed.

FRANKLIN, N. H., Oct. 16—Holding off two officers as he backed away from his home, an enraged World War veteran espied his wife emerging from the front door, and swinging his shotgun around, shot her dead today.

'GREAT DICTATOR' CHAPLIN TRIUMPH

NEW YORK. Oct. 16 (INS)—The most stunning theatrical tour de force of this generation left its audiences limp with laughter and shaken with tears today after Charlie Chaplin's new film, "The Great Dictator," opened simultaneously in two Broadway theaters.

Despite the extraneous excitements of a dual and dazzling world premiere that stopped traffic in the theatrical district, it was apparent from the momeint the film began to unfold that Chaplin had achieved a superb contradiction in terms: The perfection of an eloquent and deeply emotional indictment of dictatorship in terms of hilarious slapstick comedy.

The gay and gaudy first night audiences, studded with stage, social, political and literary celebrities, came to see dictatorship taken over the hurdles and given a brisk fry by the great comedian.

PROFOUNDLY STIRRED

But it remained to be profoundly stirred by a simple statement of man's inhumanity to man which has made countless millions mourn their loss of liberty, homes, happiness and even life in the past decade.

Through the medium of comedy, Chaplin has succeeded in damning Dictatorship and all its works more thoroughly, more poignantly and more entertainingly than all the indignant dramas that have come out of Hollywood.

And one cannot take too seriously Chaplin's own insistence that "The Great Dictator" is merely a comedy and not propaganda. It is great and joyous and unashamed propaganda for democracy.

Its unexpected and electric conclusion, in which Chaplin—no longer speaking as either the Dictator Hynkel or as a nameless little Jewish barber, but as humanity itself—makes a profoundly stirring and simple plea for the brotherhood of man, left tonight's audiences too moved and sobered momentarily to applaud the film as spontaneously as their enthusiasm warranted.

BURST INTO APPLAUSE

They sat silent and motionless before bursting into prolonged applause and shouts of delight and approval.

It is an honest conviction that long after "The Great Dictator" has become a museum piece, schoolboys and orators will still be revitalizing that final speech in which Chaplin prophesies that "the hate of men will pass, and the dictators die and the power they took from the people will return to the people. And so long as men die, liberty will never perish—."

It is just probable that "The Great Dictator" will develop into a controversial film even in this country. Certainly it would be impossible to show it anywhere in Europe today save England.

Paulette Wife, Charlie Reveals

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (INS)—Charlie Chaplin, arm in arm with Paulette Goddard, his leading lady, stood up in the orchestra pit at the world premiere here tonight of what many believe to be his greatest film triumph—"The Great Dictator"—and announced to the audience:

"My wife, Miss Paulette Goddard, and I hope you enjoy the picture."

6 Ciggies Daily, Average in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—The trend in 1939 was a bit more toward cigars, smoking and chewing tobacco census bureau figures showed today, but even so, American manufacturers turned out 180,575,095,000 cigarettes.

The value of the cigarettes was placed at $940,741,105, an increase of six per cent over 1937. The cigars, smoking and chewing tobaccos had a value of $97,006,112, an increase of 18.8 per cent.

The census bureau offered these additional facts:

The cigarette production was equal to 107 packs a year or six smokes a day for every person 18 years old or older.

State Prison Lads Register—Later

There was one spot in Boston today where young men did not have to turn out to register for the draft.

The place was the State Prison in Charlestown, where Deputy Warden Frank Graves estimated there were about 300 young men of the draft age. An officer, however, had been assigned to handle the registration, and when a man is about to be released from the institution, after serving his sentence, he will fill out a draft card before his departure.

INDEPENDENTS FOR DEVER

The executive committee of the Independent Voters of Massachusetts notified Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever today that the organization had endorsed his candidacy for governor.

Evangelist Lists God as His Employer

Thomas H. Haggerty, a draft registrar at Faneull Hall, pulled up a chair today with his draftee No. 34, David Evans, Jr., of Audubon, N. J.

"Who is your employer?" asked Haggerty.

"God," said Mr. Evans, "G-O-D, God."

"Excuse me?" asked Haggerty.

Evans repeated G-O-D and then named his place of occupation as "the great wide world."

Reasons: Mr. Evans said he was a traveling evangelist and he hadn't been home for two years.

Sears Roebuck Head for Willkie

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 16 (INS)—Expressing his conviction that President Roosevelt, if re-elected, "will have us in war within two to six months," Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears Roebuck & Co., today announced his support of Wendell L. Willkie.

Gen. Wood, who has been closely identified in the past with New Deal councils, said he had voted twice for Mr. Roosevelt, "the first time with enthusiasm and the second with uncertainty." He added:

"Certainly I was for much of the New Deal. The first two times I was for Roosevelt, but not the third.

"Why? I am opposed to the third term and perpetuation in office and am of the opinion if the President is re-elected he will have us in a war within two to six months.

ASK NAVY TO AID FORE RIVER R. R.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission heard today a suggestion that the Navy Department could subsidize purchase of one section of the Old Colony Railroad between Boston and the Fore River Shipyards near Quincy, Mass., if naval officials believed the line were necessary for national defense.

The suggestion came from Charles B. Rugg, counsel for the Old Colony trustees which has petitioned the ICC to include its lines in the reorganization of the New Haven Railroad reorganization and for the New Haven to operate the Old Colony's Bosttn group lines for freight traffic only.

Discussing the Navy's contention that the Greenbush line of the Old Colony was necessary to serve the Bethlehem Shipbuilding plant at Fore River, where $565,000,000 in contracts for warships have been let and the Navy ammunition depot at Hingham, Mass., Rugg said the Navy was subsidizing railroad expansion at Quonset Point, R. I., spending over $200,000 to extend rail lines.

The commission has granted the navy permission to intervene in the proceedings which involve the question whether the Old Colony should be included as apr'. of the New Haven Railroad reorganization.

F. K. Twitty, representing the Navy Department, estimated that navy contracts totalling $565,000,000 had been made with the Bethlehem concern and that the placing of these contracts would increase the revenue of the Old Colony. He told the commission the navy wanted an order issued to reserve to the government railroad transportation to Boston and Braintree, Mass., from the Fore River yard.

Girl Bride, 19, Faces Suit for Annulment

Charging that his 19-year-old bride of four months admitted to him that he would not be the father of her expected child, Albert J. Turner, 49-year-old Quincy man, today filed suit for annulment of his brief marriage in probate court at Dedham.

In his suit Turner explained that he had known his bride, the former Elsie B. Ladd, only one month before he married her last June 27, and that in that one month he had seen her only three times, always in the company of other persons.

"I was induced to marry this girl by her false and fraudulent representations that she was a virtuous woman," Turner's statement said.

"On Aug. 1, five weeks after I had married her, I learned that the baby she was going to have was another man's. I agreed, however, that I would continue to live with her and would provide a home for her and the baby if she would never see this man again.

"She promised, but on Aug. 9 I discovered that she was seeing this man and going out with him. So I left her. On Aug. 13, she returned to me and made the same promises again if I would take her back, and again I agreed.

"Three days later I discovered that she was again communicating with this man. She is not a dutiful and faithful wife."

HARDING'S TOWN SEES WILLKIE

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN EN ROUTE TO CINCINNATI, Oct. 16 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, declaring that America must be strong in the economic as well as military field, said today he wanted to bring about prosperity through the cooperation of labor, industry and agriculture.

"There is no conflict of American groups," he told a train-side audience at Marion, O., home of the late President Harding. "Whatever brings prosperity to one group leads to the prosperity of all.

"My object is to preserve for labor every social gain it has made. No man in the country will fight more for that goal than Wendell Willkie will.

"But I want to give much more than that to labor. I want to give an expanding economy that will bring jobs and a rising standard of living."

STRESSES UNITY

As he told an earlier gathering at Mansfield, Willkie asserted that America has but touched the borders of her achievement.

"In the home town of a former President I say this: join with me and the other Republican candidates in a program of more jobs, a defense so impregnable that we will not become involved in war with anyone.

"Join me in co-operation with all the elements of the people so that we will have unity in America, not discord."

The only things the opposition has to offer, Willkie reiterated, are "smears, silence, imaginary military inspection trips, and the pressure of billions of dollars."

The Republican presidential nominee asked the audience how it helped defense for President Roosevelt to spend 21 minutes in a steel mill "when he knows nothing about producing steel and never will."

During the Marion speech, someone in the audience called "I want to be a captain."

"You don't belong in the right family," the candidate replied.

Elliott Roosevelt, the President's second son, recently commissioned a captain in the Air Corps Reserves at Wright field, Dayton, O., sought unsuccessfully to resign Monday so he could register in the draft.

Willkie, carrying his campaign into Ohio with an appeal for farm and factory co-operation, described today's registration for selective military service as "one more chance for freedom."

TO WED—Fiery Lupe Velez, according to her secretary's announcement, is engaged and will be married in a month to Actor Guinn (Big Boy) Williams. The Mexican actress was divorced from Johnny Weissmuller in 1938.

Jackson in Hub, Raps Willkie

Atty. Gen. Robert H. Jackson declared today that Wendell Willkie's campaign for the presidency had "completely failed to get any response from the masses outside of the ticker tape district."

Jackson, in Boston for a speech tonight, maintained that public sentiment for President Roosevelt's re-election had "pretty well crystallized" following Willkie's acceptance speech.

"The people were eager to hear a program from Willkie," he added, "and not hearing any, the country made up its mind and doesn't appear to be giving the matter much more attention.'

He contended Willkie had "failed to show any leadership in either domestic or foreign fields." He added:

"President Roosevelt has that leadership and support.

"Willkie lost any opportunity he ever had of getting the masses' confidence and leadership."

SEN. JOHNSON TO AID WILLKIE

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Senator Hiram W. Johnson's decision to oppose the third term candidacy of President Roosevelt with all his mighty prestige and vigorous power of persuasive argument in debate definitely puts California in the doubtful column, with a strong probability that on Nov. 5 it will give its 22 electoral votes to Wendell L. Willkie.

Sen. Johnson's support of the Republican national ticket, for the first time since the Hoover campaign of 1928, was hailed in Washington today, with his formal announcement that he would deliver a speech against the third term in a coast-to-coast radio broadcast at 10 p. m. (E. S. T.) Friday night, as the most important accession to the ranks of the Willkie supporters since the beginning of the campaign.

When asked if in his speech against the third term candidacy he would mention Mr. Willkie Sen. Johnson indicated he would.

The senator disclosed that his address to the nation in general—and to California in particular—would be under the auspices of the Republican National Committee.

Republicans here today hoped and believed that Sen. Johnson would deliver three radio broadcasts, over a nationwide hookup, between now and election day, of which Friday night's address would be the opening gun.

Arrangements with the Republican national committee for the distinguished California Progressive to take the air in condemnation of President Roosevelt's effort to be elected for a third term were completed about 10 days ago.

Dictatorship Rules Press, Flynn Charges

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, asserted today that "the newspapers of the country are under a real dictatorship, a financial dictatorship of their advertisers."

"Their editorials about dictatorships are not on the level," Flynn said at a press conference. "They should clean their own houses before they talk about other dictatorships."

Flynn opened the press conference by saying he had been answering reporters' questions for a long time "frankly and to the best of my knowledge."

"I wonder if they would dare print the fact that the newspapers of the country are under a real dictatorship, a financial dictatorship of their advertisers," Flynn said.

In a prepared statement later he said:

"I challenge them to print this, to tell why they feed their readers in the news columns wholesale doses of partisan propaganda, instead of adhering to the independence they so often vaunt, and give their readers an even break on the actual news of the day?"

Flynn said he wanted to ask owners and editors of papers through reporters "why they didn't publish on their front pages the 'smear' story about the Republicans we brought out."

"Particularly," Flynn said, "I would like to ask the New York Times, which prides itself on its fairness, why they put the smear story which is against the Democrats on their front page, and yesterday there was another story concerning a Republican smear on the same subject (racial prejudice) and it was buried so far back in the paper I doubt if half the readers reached it.

"It was certainly proved conclusively in 1936 that they (the newspapers) did not represent the views of their readers and it will again be proven in 1940 that they don't represent the views of their readers."

The Boston American's reply to Mr. Flynn's challenge may be found on its Presidential Battle Page (Page 17), a daily feature that gives both rivals for the presidency full opportunity to present their views.

Free Breakfasts For Peru Voters

PERU, Oct. 16 (AP)—This western Massachusetts town hopes to be the first in the nation to report returns Election Day—and as an inducement will provide breakfast for the electorate.

Chairman of Selectmen Carl Rath, who announced the polls would open at 5:45 a. m., said that breakfast would be provided in Town Hall for every voter after the ballots were counted and broadcast.

He expected to get out the town's 87 votes before daylight by sending them form letters asking for their co-operation. Numerically, Peru is the fifth smallest community in the State.

101st Infantry Opens Drive for Recruits

The 101st Infantry started a drive for recruits today to bring the man power of that famed regiment of the 26th Division to its maximum peace time strength.

Col. Paul G. Kirk pointed out that all officers in the 101st came up through the ranks, and that the War Department has announced the 26th will train at Camp Edward in Falmouth in January. Men who enlist in the national guard will have one year of training, then two years in service in local armories blown to pieces. Countless dead and injured lay in the ruins.

London Air Raids Grow in Intensity

At one place where the dead and dying could be brought out they were placed on the littered pavement to await the attention of overtaxed ambulance crews.

These were but parts of the censor-shaded picture of London under the German bomb attacks.

The ministry of information charged that the overnight raiders strewed their bomb cargoes indiscriminately, hitting homes as well as industries and utilities.

Unofficially, it was estimated that 250 tons of bombs were dropped by from 200 to 250 planes during the night.

The Berlin report was that 1000 planes dropped 1000 tons of bombs on the city.—Editor's note.

Two big bombs hit the two-story schoolhouse squarely but missed a trench shelter dug in the corner of the schoolyard. Rescue workers feared many were killed and injured. They did not know how many were in the building. Scores were in the trench shelter.

One terrific blast ripped a block of apartments to pieces, and a pastor sleeping in a nearby church basement told of crawling out and seeing the twisted bodies of dead and injured, some of them still in their beds, pinned beneath beams and blocks of concrete.

One bomb made a direct hit on a previously damaged office building from which rescue squads still were trying to remove persons pinned under debris. Five dead and a number of injured were taken from the wreckage and others were believed still buried.

In the same area a block of one-room apartments for girls was wrecked and numerous casualties were caused by demolition of a row of houses in an adjoining street.

Another bomb hit a public shelter and it was feared that a number of people had been entombed.

Still another bomb exploded near a shelter under a building in which 110 persons had taken refuge. Rescue crews by mid-morning had taken out seven dead and a number of injured.

The rescue work was slowed by the necessity of removing masonry by hand to prevent further collapse of the building.

PRIEST TRAPPED IN DEBRIS

In one London area 28 bombs fell within a small radius, hitting a Roman Catholic church, a school, apartments, factories and numbers of shops and small houses.

Rescue workers digging in the debris of a youth hostel had given up hope of finding anyone alive when a policeman heard the muffled sound of voices. Renewed digging uncovered 15 boys who had been asleep in the basement. Most of them were unharmed, but two or three others were known to be dead.

A priest was trapped with three other boys, but little hope was held that they still lived. One of those rescued had been pinned down by timbers and stone. Unable to move, he kept up a running conversation with his rescuers until they lifted him free.

A college in London was damaged severely last night, and it was believed some lives were lost there, since a number of residents from the East End, already bombed out of their homes, had taken shelter there. The basement was flooded by broken water mains.

The first daylight attack today lasted only a few minutes, but seemed to presage another day of repeated alarms and additional ruin.

Other daylight raiders were seen near two south coast towns.

While London counted its dead, reports from the Midlands and southwestern England indicated the overnight pounding there was the longest and most severe of recent weeks.

The raiders, taking advantage of the clear, moonlit night, shuttled back and forth across the English Channel ceaselessly. Sometimes they roared in over the English coast one a minute.

NAZI BASES BOMBED

The main strength of the Royal Air Force's nocturnal raiding squadrons roared over the North Sea last night and dropped tons of high explosives on German naval bases at Kiel and Hamburg, hammering away at shipping and wharves, the air ministry declared today.

The weather was spotty—clear in places, in others so bad that blind flying was necessary; and some of the RAF planes with assigned objectives elsewhere in Germany did not reach their destinations, the ministry said.

Bombs were dropped on oil plants at Gelsenkirchen, Magdeburg and Salzerbergen. Two oil depots near Kiel also were hit, the communique said. Other planes pitched their bombs at freight yards at Schwerte, Krefeld, Hamm and Soest, and railroad junctions at Nordhausen and Halle.

Italians Claim British Sub Sunk

ROME, Oct. 16 (AP)—Sinking of the big British submarine Perseus after a violent artillery duel with the Italian submarine Toti in the central Mediterranean was reported today by the Italian high command.

The Italian craft hit the Perseus with shells and machine-gun bullets, the high command said, and then, maneuvering swiftly, launched a torpedo which finished the job.

BOMBS PUNCTUATE REPORTER'S STORY

By LARRY ALLEN

WITH THE BRITISH MEDITERRANEAN FLEET AT ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 16 (AP)—As I write this story on board the flagship, Italian bombers are trying to avenge Italy for the loss of three destroyers last Saturday, and my typewriter is bouncing from one end of the table to the other.

Bombs are falling outside in great numbers, sending up fountains of whitened water.

The four-inch anti-aircraft guns on the flagship, aircraft carriers and other units are in action. Shells are breaking high in the air, but the bombers are keeping at an altitude of 20,000 feet except that now and then one swoops lower.

I suspect the British had rather expected an attack of this kind for the Italian air arm had raided them after the Ajax had sunk two destroyers, with the York, finished off a third destroyer, the Artigliere.

After Saturday's battle near Sicily the ships swung under Crete and then south, the men busy on deck and below.

The Italians had attacked and had been beaten off with a loss of four bombers and perhaps two other planes.

Egypt's low shoreline loomed and we were back in port.

Now the fight was on again. I can hear the high whistle of the bombs, the sudden brief silencing swish as they land in the water.

Fighter planes skim off the decks of the aircraft carriers, shooting skywards with amazing speed, their machine guns spitting at the bombers.

The Italians finally have unloaded eveyrthing they had and made off.

Nazis Plan to Triple Bombing of London

BERLIN, Oct. 16 (AP)—Attacks on London will be tripled before the German air offensive reaches its peak, and tons of bombs will be the British capital's daily fare from now on, informed Nazi sources predicted today.

Last night's assault on London, during which 1000 tons of bombs were reported dropped on the city, was only a "zephyr" compared with what was in store, these sources declared.

"We'll reach the typhoon stage yet," they asserted. "We're only about one-third of the way there now."

German submarines were reported, at the same time, to be stepping up their attacks on Britain's lifelines and one underseas raider was credited with sinking 31000 tons of merchant shipping on a single trip.

The number of bombs dropped on England during the night, it was said was 100 times the number unloaded by British warplanes which flew over various regions of Germany last night.

DNB, official German agency, quoted returning Nazi pilots today as saying London was "a great sea of flames."

The agency said the fliers reported they had observed fires throughout an area from 48 to 60 miles wide, which presumably was in the area between London and the seashore.

Extensive fires were raging north of the Victoria docks and others were seen in the center of the city and at the bend of the Thames, DNB said.

GIVE BRITISH NO REST

Strong forces of Nazi planes were reported striking fiercely again at London and southern England by daylight today in line with the campaign to give the British no rest.

The high command declared the British were unable to attack Germany in daylight and so were continuing "nocturnal, planless bomb raids on non-military targets and thus primarily against the German civilian population."

This, in part, accounted for the increase in "retaliatory attacks on London," its communique said.

The German air force, the communique said, attacked industrial plants, oil depots, airports, railway and port facilities and armament supply centers in southern and central England.

1000 PLANES IN RAID

The British lost 33 planes yesterday, the Germans claimed, while only seven of theirs failed to return.

German sources reported improving weather conditions helped their attacks today, and said large scale raids were made on the London suburb of Silvertown where factories and an airport were smashed.

Numerous air fights were said to be in progress over Southern England.

More than 1000 Nazi bombers defying British ground batteries and fighter planes, were reported to have taken part in the night-long attacks on London, leaving "indescribable chaos" in their wake.

Gibraltar Target Of Heavy Attack

ALGECIRAS, Spain, Oct. 16 (AP)—High flying planes raided Gibraltar at midday today in the heaviest attack since French airmen bombed the British rock September 24 and 25.

The anti-aircraft guns of the British stronghold went into action against the raiders. The bombers dropped their loads from high above a layer of clouds.

For 30 minutes the anti-aircraft artillery was in action, starting at 12:30 p. m. and again for 10 minutes at 1:30 p. m.

Observers here and at nearby La Linea, Spain, were unable to determine the nationality or the strength of the raiders because of the clouds.

Canada Ship Sends SOS After Torpedoing

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (INS)—A merchant vessel, identifying herself as the Canadian ship Trevisa, radioed distress signals stating she had been torpedoed and was sinking, MacKay radio announced.

The Trevisa gave her position as latitude north 57.23, longitude west 20.36, a point about 400 miles west of the northern point of Ireland in the Atlantic.

Strait of Dover Clouded in Mist

DOVER, England, Oct. 16 (AP)—A heavy mist hung over the Strait of Dover today as the sun struggled to break through an overcast sky. The wind had veered around from southwest to northeast and the sea was calm.

Bombs Put London Stock Exchange Out of Business

LONDON, Oct. 16 (INS)—Indicating that the famous world trade center was hit by a bomb, authorities today permitted announcement that the London Stock Exchange is "not at present available for business."

The Stock Exchange is located in the heart of "the city" of London, near the Bank of England.

"BOSTON AFTER DARK," by George Holland is a regular feature of the Boston Evening American.

French Hero Signs for U. S.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16 (AP)—Gilbert Mandelik, 31, just returned from the French army with a Croix de Guerre, will register for the draft today.

Mandelik came here in 1935 from the French movie studios. His military class was called in September 1939. He didn't have to go because he had taken out citizenship papers, but he did.

From June 6 to 9, his regiment manning four French 75's, tried to stem the Nazi columns.

Highlights of Registration Day For Greater Boston Draftees

As 2000 persons jammed Faneuil Hall to register, a man who had imbibed too much edged his way through the crowd to a chair in front of one of the registrars.

"Too drunk to register," the registrar remarked, whereupon the inebriate put up a loud argument.

Police rushed him to Station 1, where Capt. John J. Mullen declared:

"Drunk or not, he's going back to register."

Back to Faneuil Hall went the inebriate with a police escort. After much difficulty he was finally registered. Then he fell from the chair. So back to the police station, where he was booked for drunkenness.

* * *

At 9:30 a. m., there was such a rush of registrants at the Eliot and Michelangelo Schools, Charter st., North End, that the election commission was obliged to send 12 more registrars to help out. All were City of Boston employes who volunteered for the work.

Back Bay Has First Objector

Boston's first conscientious objector made his appearance at the Prince School, Newbury and Exeter st., Back Bay, and declared he was calling, not to register but to announce his refusal to register.

Ernest W. Anderson, master of the school who is chief registrar for that district, warned the objector of the consequences if he failed to register, as required to do regardless of his views.

The man left declaring that he would return later in the day with two witnesses to justify his refusal to register.

* * *

One of the early registrants at Faneuil Hall—where 60 were waiting when the doors opened at 7 a. m.—was a Miami, Fla., man who arrived at 6:05, explaining he had to catch a train. He was recorded as quickly as possible.

* * *

At 8:30 a. m., more than 75 men were waiting in a line outside the Washington Allston School, Cambridge st., Allston, while inside all space was jammed.

* * *

After two-hour tour of the city, Election Commissioner Frederic C. Dowling said that registration was proceeding perfectly and that the teachers were doing a fine job.

* * *

Cambridge registration head J. Frank Facey asked the two men who worked out the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's system for registering—Joseph C. MacKinnon and Donald P. Severance—how they did it after seeing 265 M. I. T. students handled in the first two hours.

* * *

Merton Clarke Bullock of Burtt st., Lowell, and Miguel Renato Unson of Manila, P. I., were the first students at Technology to register. Both are graduate students in chemical engineering.

* * *

The switchboard at the election commission in Boston City Hall was deluged with calls . . . many of them rather silly. Most often asked, however, was whether registering to vote covers the draft. It doesn't. One man wanted to know if he could send his sister-in-law down to register for him. He could not.

Under ruling by chairman of the Suffolk County courthouse commission, Charles M. Davenport, employes of the courthouse were given time off to register.

* * *

There was no excuse for non-English speaking aliens having any difficulty in registering for the draft. At Faneuil Hall and in the 149 booths throughout Boston interpreters were on duty. The two downtown were able to converse fluently in German, French, Hebrew, Yiddish, Dutch and Flemish. All districts had volunteers capable of speaking any language.

* * *

The man with the longest name to register at Faneuil Hall up to noon was Jacob Anker Christian Elbert Ahlberg. He is a 210-pound seaman and member of the crew of the Danish freighter Herta Haerski interned at Battery Wharf since the outbreak of the war.

* * *

Men celebrating their 36th birthday anniversary today had double cause to be happy. Half a dozen called up registration headquarters to inquire whether they must register. They were informed that if they were born Oct. 16, 1904, they would not have to register. Those whose birthday comes tomorrow, however, must register.

* * *

When a black cat emerged from the balcony in Faneuil Hall and dashed through the throng of draft registrants, many men scrambled to get out of its way. Those brushed by the cat in its flight were sure they would be among the first to be drafted into service.

In Middlesex Valley towns hundreds responded early to the call for registration.

* * *

One of the first assignments of Mrs. Louise Currier of Carlisle, volunteer registrar, was to sign up her son, Rudolph, 28, one of five brothers eligible for the service. Two boys are members of the 182nd Infantry, Massachusetts National Guard.

* * *

Paul Beardsell, 25, a cripple since childhood, was No. 1 registrant in Concord. He appeared at the Harvey Wheeler school in a wheelchair

* * *

Arlington, whose six registration places opened to lines of more than 400 men, reported that five registrants had appeared on crutches and one call was received for a registrar to take care of a patient at Symmes Hospital.

* * *

At 11:30 a. m., 618 students from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology had been registered, an average of about 150 an hour. It took registrars an average of three minutes to register a student.

* * *

Rabbi Feivel Shragza Kahana, noted Jewish author, historian and lecturer and a refugee from Palestine, registered for the draft at Faneuil Hall. As he signed his card, he exclaimed, "God bless America." Rabbi Kahana, who is in Boston to deliver a series of synagogue lectures, said his wife and five children were still in Palestine and that his mother, grandmother and two cousins had been slain in the Arab uprising of 1938.

* * *

Mrs. Elizabeth Carroll of East Boston, mother of two children and who is employed in the Boston sanitary division, had the distinction of being the only woman registrar on duty at Faneuil Hall. Mrs. Carroll's husband has been confined in a hospital for the past six years, and throughout that time she has worked to support the family.

* * *

As a result of calls from many relatives and friends, nearly a score of special registrars were sworn in late today to register persons confined at their homes by illness.

Duty done, John Roosevelt stands outside Nahant registration office and puts his identification card in his billfold . . . now, although the youngest son of the President, he's just another number in the nation's preparedness program . . . one of 16,500,000.

JOHN ROOSEVELT 72D NAHANT REGISTRANT

John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President, was the 72nd of the 300 eligibles in the town of Nahant to register there today.

James, the oldest, is a captain of Marines; Elliott recently took a much-criticized captaincy in the Air Corps, and Franklin, Jr., registered at Indianapolis today.

GREETS CAMERAMEN

The young business executive—he is the acting manager of the Winchester branch of a large Boston department store—arrived at the John T. Wilson school, Nahant's only registration station, at 11:35 a. m. He expertly parked a medium priced black coach opposite the school.

He bounded out of his car and waved a greeting to more than a dozen news cameramen who turned a barrage of clicking shutters upon him as he walked to the school entrance.

A half dozen school teachers, employed as registrars scampered back from the windows of the little two-story red brick school building as young Roosevelt mounted the steps.

GIRL CLERKS DRAW LOTS

He was ushered to the first table in a line of four in the school's library, by M. J. Cassin, superintendent of schools.

Assigned to take down the necessary information was attractive, brunette Miss Mary Shea of Salem, art supervisor for Nahant schools. Choice of Miss Shea was, however, no accident since hours before the expected arrival of the President's son six school teachers, all young and attractive, drew lots for the honor and Miss Shea won.

John draped his long gray flannel-clad legs over each other as he sat facing Nahant harbor and another barrage of still and movie cameras. Actual business of registering took only seven minutes.

John said that he had no objections to serving a year as a draftee and that he was physically fit and ready to serve "when my number is drawn."

His draft could be deferred since he has two dependents, his wife, the former Anne Clark and his five-months old son, Haven Clark Roosevelt.

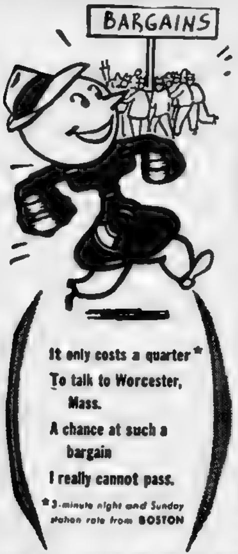
F. D., Jr., Registers In Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., 26, registered here today for selective military service.

Roosevelt, second son of the President, arrived by plane shortly before noon to be guest of honor at a Democratic luncheon.

Roosevelt joined in general laughter when Charles R. Ettinger, county clerk in charge of registration, asked his occupation and Roosevelt replied:

"Well, I'm unemployed."



It only costs a quarter*

650,000 Bay State Draftees on March

waiting to sign up for possible service had increased from 50 to 500 men.

It was a sample and a symbol of what was going on throughout the country.

Non-resident students, out to beat the deadline of eight o'clock classes, were on hand early at special booths in Harvard medical school, Boston University, Tufts medical and dental schools, and Northeastern University.

Chairman William A. Motley of the Boston Election Commission said that within a short time after the President's address hundreds of calls were received at City Hall from persons volunteering to assist in the process of registration.

WAVE OF PATRIOTISM

"A wave of patriotism is sweeping the city," he declared. "Everyone is intensely interested in this work. Men and women who have volunteered to assist in registration have left their telephone numbers with the request that they be called at any hour they're needed."

Typical of the spirit of those within the age draft classes was the rush of registrants at the Bigelow school in E st., South Boston, Motley remarked.

With an estimated quota of 1200 eligible, by 9:53 a. m. there were 625 men who had signed their cards and received their certificates.

More cards, certificates and informatory pamphlets were rushed to this center.

It was the same all through the communities of Greater Boston, through the state, and through the nation.

500 POLICE AID

Five hundred policemen, assigned by Commr. Timilty on request of Supt. Edward W. Fallon, were assisting registrars and registrants at polling booths in Boston.

From these and from one registrant after another came commendation about the efficiency with which the task of registration was being accomplished.

But while many were called, a relatively few were to be initially chosen. From the 16,000,000 manpower pool, selective service officials expect to draw 5,000,000 men ready and able to undergo army life in the next 4½ years.

In Massachusetts more than 650,000 were on the march to 1813 registration places in schools, town halls and civic centers.

Perhaps one of the most famous Massachusetts young men to register is John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President. As a married man he will not be called but like all the others his record was in the army files. Already in the army, navy and marine reserve units were the President's other three sons—thus exempted from registering.

LIST PERSHING'S SON

Among others well known who registered in widely scattered cities were:

Francis Warren Pershing, 31, New York broker, and only son of the commander-in-chief of our armies in the last war.

Bob Feller, Cleveland baseball pitcher.

And when all the statistics are in, the fateful numbers of the first to be called for training will be drawn in a huge national lottery in Washington some time within the next 10 to 17 days.

ONE IN 4 FOR CLASS 1

It is estimated that about one out of four of those who register in this state, or approximately 162,000, will be placed in the Class I group.

It has been reported that about 30,000 from Massachusetts will be among the first 900,000 men called to service.

Whether or not he believes he is eligible to be drafted, every man between the ages of 21 and 35 inclusive MUST REGISTER

To register does not necessarily mean that you will be drafted for military training.

But whether citizen or alien, sick or well, rich or poor, single or the head of a family, working or studying, employed or jobless, every one within the designated age limits must register except those included in the followin gexempt classifications:

"Commissioned officers, warrant officers, pay clerks, and enlisted men of the Regular Army, the Navy, the Marine Corps, the Coast Guard, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the Public Health Service, the federally recognized active National Guard, the Officers' Reserve Corps, the Regular Army Reserve, the Enlisted Reserve Corps, the Naval Reserve, and the Marine Corps Reserve.

"Also cadets, United States Military Academy; midshipmen, United States Naval Academy; cadets, United States Coast Guard Academy; men who have been accepted for admittance (commencing with the academic year next succeeding such acceptance) to the United States Military Academy as cadets, to the United States Naval Academy as midshipmen, or to the United States Coast Guard Academy as cadets, but only during the continuance of such acceptance; cadets of the advanced course, senior division, Reserve Officers' Training Corps or Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

"Also diplomatic representatives, technical attaches of foreign embassies and legations, consuls general, consuls, vice consuls, and consular agents of foreign countries, residing in the United States, who are not citizens of the United States, and who have not declared their intention to become citizens of the United States."

'YOUR QUOTA IS CALLED'; WHAT'S NEXT FOR DRAFTEE

This article, "Your Quota Is Called," is the fourth in a series, "R-DAY" and YOU! explaining the Selective Service Act. Back copies of the papers explaining the various steps from Registration to Classification may be secured at the Circulation Dept., 5 Winthrop sq, Boston.

By JAMES DOOLING

Even before they have received their draft questionnaires, authorities anticipate, many of the men who have registered today may decide that they want to volunteer for service.

Those who wish to make their own choice of service still have the opportunity of enlisting in a specific branch of the Army for the regular three-year term or in the Navy for a six-year "hitch."

Others who have registered may want to go into military service right away without waiting for the procedure of their order number being called—that is, to serve for the required one year.

REPORT ENLISTMENT

Those who enlist for regulation periods should notify their draft boards immediately so that their area will receive credit when it comes to making up local quotas. Those who want to volunteer for the one-year training period should also serve notice on their local boards. If they have not yet been assigned an order number, a "V" (for volunteer) will be marked with their serial numbers.

For those who have been classified and are now waiting, the next step is the physical examination. All whose questionnaires show them to be apparently eligible for Class I will be called for this examination according to their order numbers.

Those tentatively listed in Class I, after the physical examination, will either stay in that class or be moved to Class IV—the unfit.

Draft boards in each area will notify each registrant how he is classified; notices are to be posted publicly at each board office. It is the duty of the registrant to see that he learns everything possible about his status.

5 DAYS TO APPEAL

He has five days to appeal his classification, either on grounds of his answers in his questionnaire or on grounds of the physical examination. There are Appeal Boards for every area. Any appellant will be given full cooperation. He need not retain a lawyer.

Total Class I registrants will be reported to the national headquarters in Washington and the War Department will apportion the first quota to be called in each state. As has been explained, states and areas will be given credit for those from their districts already in the service. It may even be possible that because of the number of men under arms and those who have volunteered, that first quota, even later quotas, will be filled without further steps

If the quota is not filled, then men in Class I will be selected according to their order number, the man with the smaller number obviously being called before the one with a larger number in his class.

The man who is called has had fair notice up to this point that he is apt to be called and it is up to him to have his affairs in readiness

The government and the various states have passed laws providing maximum protection for him in any job he has to leave for the service. His mortgage on his home or any property—such as an automobile—may not be foreclosed while he is in service. His family may not be evicted for non-payment of rent if the rent is a reasonable figure. Other business affairs are up to the potential draftee now. He may have only 24 hours notice to report

(The next step is "Your Induction into Service." This will be explained in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.)

Men Under 36 Must Quit Draft Board Posts

Discovery that many appointed to draft boards by Gov. Saltonstall are of draft age and therefore cannot serve and pass on themselves, makes it necessary for the Governor to replace them.

Among them was Judge Edward Morley, 33, of the Gloucester court, who resigned because he might be called on to vote his own deferment on the ground he is a judge.

Gov. Saltonsall is expected to make the replacements within the next few days.

Mills Brothers Headline New Stage Bill at RKO Boston

Famous Four Open Tomorrow

Fresh from a triumphant two-year tour of the largest theaters on the continent, the Mills Brothers, originators of imitating musical instruments by voice manipulations, headline the stage revue opening tomorrow at the RKO Boston Theater for four days.

On the screen are two first-run ofeature attractions, "The Ape," featuring Boris Karloff and "Drums of the Desert," with Ralph Byrd and Lorna Gray.

Billed as "Four Boys and a Guitar" the Mills Brothers have appeared on countless radio programs, made personal appearances in the largest theaters of this country and Europe, besides appearing in four motion pictures.

Using only a battered guitar and their hands cupped over their mouths, the boys produce the effect of a regular orchestra composed of tuba, trombone, clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, bassoon, oboe and many other instruments.

They will offer the orchestral-effect numbers and hot Harlem harmony that made them world-wide favorites.

Holding down the comedy spot is Wally Brown, a Malden boy, and a highlight of the famous Rudy Vallee Hour. He will be assisted by the capable Annette Ames in a comedy sketch entitled "Those Two American Tourists."

Other big RKO acts appearing in this revue are the Byrne Sisters, "The Tops In Taps," John Gallus and his Magic Clarinet, and the incomparable tumblers, Dick, Don and Dinah.

"The Ape" is based on Adam Hal Shinks' Broadway stage success and presents Karloff in a Jekyll and Hyde type of role.

Nazi Terrorism Shown in Film

By incorporating sections of the Nazi propaganda film "Feuertaufe" (Baptism of Fire) as the new ending for Ramparts We Watch," despite protests of the German Embassy, the March of Time has achieved the dramatic effect originally planned for its first feature production, which comes to the Trans-Lux Theater on Friday.

Begining with a dramatic picturization of America in the first World War from the viewpoint of the citizens of a typical small town, the March of Time sought to draw the parallel with today's crisis when the world once more fears the consequences of a German victory. U. S. preparedness against such an eventuality was to be the keynote.

The Nazi film to "soften" countries such as Norway, Holland, Belgium and France which Germany was about to conquer, was seen by the March of Time as a warning of what free countries were up against today.

In the Nazi sequence American moviegoers will now se for the first time a Stuka bomber diving to destroy a railroad junction, the German war machine building bridges, razing Warsaw, spraying flaming gasoline on a trapped garrison. It will see parachute troops behind the lines, panzer divisions in action, and fifth columnists pointing out those who "persecuted" them in order that they may be shot.

Gary Cooper Has Title Role In 'Law West of Pecos' Epic

Against the colorful and adventure-filled background of the Old West, in the days when justice was administered at the point of a gun, roistering Judge Roy Bean loomed as the "Law West of the Pecos."

In Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner," opening at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters tomorrow, Gary Cooper plays the title role and Walter Brennan the celebrated Judge Bean.

Directed by William Wyler from the screen adaptation by Jo Swerling and Niven Busch, "The Westerner" also features in the cast which supports Cooper such notable players as Fred Stone, Doris Davenport, Lilian Bond, Forest Tucker and Paul Hurst.

The setting of the story is Vinegarroon, Texas, in the roaring days of the 80's when there raged a bitter and long protracted battle between the cattlemen, original settlers of the land, and the homesteaders, who sought to till the land which they homesteaded under the law.

Just when this battle is reaching a peak, the Westerner, a roving cowboy named Cole Harden, drifts into town and finds himself entangled in the vicious "Law West of the Pecos."

But the Westerner is a wily adventurer, fearless and bold, and when he comes to grips with wily Judge Bean he proves a shrewd opponent.

More than eight and a half miles of virgin roads were built by the Samuel Goldwyn company preceding the filming of "The Westerner" location at Goldwyn City, Ariz.

As a companion feature is Columbia's "Glamor For Sale," featuring Roger Pryor and Anita Louise in an interesting and exciting story on tracking down unlawful escort agencies.

GARY COOPER and Doris Davenport in, "The Westerner," opening on Loew's State and Orpheum screens tomorrow.

'Knute Rockne--All-American' Film at Met Tomorrow

Pat O'Brien Has Grid Hero's Role

The eagerly anticipated debut of "Knute Rockne All-American," starring Pat O'Brien, is scheduled for tomorrow at the Metropolitan Theater. The companion film will be "Calling All Husbands," with George Tobias, Lucille Fairbanks, and Ernest Truex.

Critics who previewed the picture at the South Bend, Ind., premiere, rated "Knute Rockne All American" as one of the year's outstanding film productions. It is a film life story of one of America's outstanding film productions. It is a film life story of one of America's greatest and wisest heroes - Knute Rockne.

The picture traces Rockne's life from his early childhood in Norway to his tragic death in 1931. His life was full of excitement, despair, love, and triumph.

The film, with Pat O'Brien cast as the Notre Dame football wizard, faithfully portrays those elements and keeps alive the true spirit of Rockne. His vigor, his astute philosophy, the great teams he built, the developing of the "Four Horsemen" are all told with a skillful blending of power and subtlety.

The supporting cast consists of Gale Page as Bonnie, Knute's wife; Donald Crisp as Father Callahan, president of Notre Dame; and Ronald Reagan as the renowned George Gipp. Lloyd Bacon directed for Warner Brothers from a screen play by Robert Buckner based upon private papers and reports of Rockne's associates and friends.

"Calling All Husbands" is an exciting comedy of family life about a hen-pecked husband who discovers that he can say "No" to his wife without having to run away. Noel Smith directed for Warners.

Ed Wynn's Gifted Son in Title Role

Keenan Wynn, talented son of Broadway's favorite comedian, is to play the title role in the George Abbott production, "The White-Haired Boy," the new comedy by Charles Martin and Beatrice Kaufman. Wynn will play the prize-winning playwright who admits he is a genius. He was last seen here in "Two for the Money" and before that in "The Star Wagon." "The White Haired Boy" will play a week's engagement at the Plymouth, beginning Monday Oct. 28.

PRESIDENTIAL BATTLE PAGE

Who Moved Industry South?

(Provided by the Democratic National Committee)

After Wendell Willkie's invasion of New England, the ancient wheeze about President Roosevelt stirring up class prejudices, repeated so often with nothing to sustain it, wears pretty thin.

The Republican nominee was after votes and he was not too careful in selecting his methods of pursuit. Apparently he figures that results count no matter how you obtain them.

The removal of Northern industries to the South and other sections of the country is a vexing issue in the New England textile and shoe manufacturing areas. Candidate Willkie decided to make capital of this fact.

In a speech at New Bedford, Mass., he said the New Deal policy is to divide and rule. "It has pitted class against class and section against section," he added.

In the same speech, after contrasting federal tax collections in New England and relief expenditures in other sections, Mr. Willkie said:

"And that is the reason why your factories here in New England are idle while new factories that compete with you are being built in Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama."

WILLKIE CLAIMED THE CREDIT

Now who helped build the new factories which, according to the Republican nominee, are draining the industrial lifeblood of New England and other Northern sections?

Wendell Willkie, president of Commonwealth & Southern, a utility holding company, answered that question in a speech at Birmingham, Ala., on Nov. 7, 1934. Mr. Willkie did it himself. He was proud of the fact and he wanted to let his Southern audience know how well he promoted their interests. He said:

"The Alabama Power Co., can remove industries from the North, because it is a business concern, but the T. V. A. cannot remove them because it is a part of the government, and therefore has to think of the political effect on the community from which the industry is removed . . .

"I can tell you why we maintain an office in New York. It is solely for two reasons: first, to have a convenient and advantageous point from which we can work with the Alabama Power Co., and other companies to secure the removal of NORTHERN INDUSTRIES TO THIS AREA.

"How successfully we have done this, perhaps you can judge by the fact that in the past decade the new industries division of the Alabama Power Co., aided directly or indirectly in the location of 245 industries in 129 different communities in your State."

Consider those paragraphs carefully. First he said emphatically that the government could not be a party to the transfer of industries from the North to the South. But Wendell Willkie, as a power company president could, and did.

PROMOTING NATIONAL UNITY

With national unity the supreme issue of the hour, the ethics of a Presidential candidate trying to stir up sectional prejudice and jealousy may be open to question. The fact is that the Roosevelt Administration has tried to halt the transfer of manufacturing plants to low-wage areas by enactment of the wages and hours law, a measure which many Republicans in Congress vigorously opposed. The Republicans were in power for 12 years and never sponsored such a law.

A year ago, Willkie thought that Tom Girdler, the labor-baiting chairman of Republic Steel, was one of the true heroes of America. When confronted with this fact, he had nothing to say but his secretary for the press, Lem Jones, denied that he had ever made such a statement. Yet two newspapers, now ardently supporting the Willkie candidacy, quoted the statement on Girdler. Apparently, his supporters seriously doubt the accuracy of the press.

A FEW CONTRADICTIONS

When he was campaigning from the front porch at Rushville, Ind., the Republican nominee was going to do something about this "pernicious" legislation adopted by the Roosevelt Administration. Then he headed into the Pacific Coast region where he discovered that the Roosevelt program was excellent, power policies and all. Then in New England, he decided that these measures were leading to bankruptcy and inflation.

When he addressed the steel workers and stockyard workers of Illinois he found it worthwhile to tuck in a sneer at Harvard and Groton men. A bit of class prejudice might win a few votes.

In the cattle raising states, Willkie denounced the purchase of $7500 worth of canned Argentine beef for the American Navy. This crack deeply offended a powerful nation just when the United States needs friends. Having done the damage, the nominee promised to promote better relations with Latin-America.

The Republican nominee is deeply afraid lest free speech be curtailed if President Roosevelt is re-elected. We favor the fullest freedom of speech for Mr. Willkie. He is so self-revealing.

Why the People Fear One-Man Rule

(Provided by the National Committee of Democrats-For-Willkie)

No Third Term!
DEMOCRATS
WILLKIE

Why do so many civic, educational and religious leaders deeply fear a Third Term for President Roosevelt?

Why are these men strongly opposed to a Third Term even though they approve of Mr. Roosevelt's humanitarian efforts, praise him for his lack of religious bigotry as evidenced in his appointments to office of men and women of every creed and believe in his attempts to provide better educational opportunities for our youth?

The answer is clear:

They know that a Third Term is bound to lead toward dictatorship no matter how well intentioned Mr. Roosevelt may be, and that free education and freedom of worship are impossible under dictatorship whatever form it takes, whatever name it goes by.

APPETITE FOR POWER GROWS WITH POWER

Fear of one-man power is not confined to educational and religious leaders, it is in the hearts of the people everywhere. They know that Mr. Roosevelt is against dictators, they know how he has fought Hitler, the most dangerous dictator of them all. But, they go beyond that, because they know what power and still more power does to the mind of a man.

They know that Washington, Jefferson and Jackson and our other great Presidents were against a Third Term, because these great men would not trust themselves or any other man with the power that a Third Term would bring.

The "NO THIRD TERM" tradition is as sacred as the integrity of the Supreme Court. The people wanted the protection of the Supreme Court, and they defeated the President's attempt in 1937 to tear it down. They know that Mr. Roosevelt's Third Term grab is just as much an attack on the protection of minorities as was his plan to pack the Supreme Court.

Whether it was the Scottsboro boys in Alabama, the question of the maintenance of the parochial schools in Oregon, or the rights of free speech by labor, in all instances it was the Supreme Court which protected minority groups. The integrity of the Supreme Court and the unwritten law that no President shall serve a Third Term are inextricably tied together.

It has been getting quite fashionable, in recent years, to snicker and sneer at the things we learned in school as old-fashioned and not applying to conditions today.

But, with Europe in flames, with democracy falling in country after country, the people of the United States are turning back to their old moorings and are wondering if what was good enough for Washington and Jefferson and Jackson and Cleveland and Wilson, should not be good enough for Franklin Roosevelt.

TWO "NATIONAL NO THIRD TERM DAYS"

From reports we are getting from all over the country the people, on Oct. 23 in a coast-to-coast observance of National NO THIRD TERM DAY, will tell Mr. Roosevelt what they think of his grab for power. And on still another National NO THIRD TERM DAY, Nov. 5, we are confident that they will settle the issue for all time.

The observance of the first national "NO THIRD TERM DAY" on Oct. 23 comes in response to the urging of more than 50 of the most outstanding civic leaders in America.

Among these are James Truslow Adams, the historian; Sen. Edward R. Burke of Nebraska, Past Supreme Knight Martin Carmody of the Knights of Columbus, former Democratic Governor Cary Hardee of Florida, Stanley High, author, of Connecticut; the Rev. Norman C. Peale, Marble Collegiate Church; Judge Joseph M. Proskauer and Samuel Seabury, all of New York; President Charles Seymour of Yale, Dean Ignatius M. Wilkinson of Fordham Law School, and others equally well known.

A MAJORITY OF THEM ARE DEMOCRATS!

THE pontifical high mass celebrated at the Los Angeles Coliseum to honor the centenary of the Catholic hierarchy in California will remain a long time in the memory of America as a spectacle of almost incredible splendor and magnificence.

It will be remembered much longer as an affirmation of profoundly devout attachment to Christian hope and determination, to the faith that overcomes affliction and achieves peace, and which encloses all men in the forgiving and compassionate embrace of Our Lord.

One hundred and ten thousand faithful attended the mass at the Coliseum. Millions of other persons throughout the United States attended it in spirit.

Prayers ascended to the Father from a land that has been singularly blessed, a peaceful and beautiful land to which the message of Jesus Christ was first brought and expounded by the Franciscan missionaries.

A land that for more than a hundred years has counted innumerable benefits from the spiritual guidance of Catholic ministers.

A land also where anyone may worship in absolute freedom of conscience and where religious strife has never occurred to hamper social progress.

This mass, with all the stately splendor of its celebration, with all the eminence of its participants, was simply a majestic means of emphasizing the intention of the Holy Father, which is world peace on the principles of justice and charity.

The Rt. Rev. Fulton J. Sheen, who delivered the sermon, eloquently described the struggles and difficulties of the early church in California and then uttered the spiritual message of the ancient sacrifice.

> "But now we come to the reward, the Communion. Now we must make ready for a repetition of the events of the mass that are found in all life—the offer, the sacrifice, the reward."

This is indeed the central doctrine.

Not only Americans that are Catholics, but all Americans who worship according to other rites, must in these dark days of anxiety and travail offer themselves to the ideals and purposes of a great nation dedicated to liberty and justice.

They must make the sacrifices required of them.

For only then will Americans receive the reward, which is happiness in the brotherhod of justice, serenity and strength in the observance of His word, a place of honor and an enduring glory in upholding and applying that word to our daily relations with other peoples and with each other.

FOR A BETTER NAVY, a Congressional subcommittee has announced it will recommend construction on the West Coast of a naval training academy comparable to Annapolis.

The Congressmen have thus come precisely to the same conclusion that has been repeatedly pointed out by this newspaper.

A Two-Ocean Navy is by no means only a matter of ships and guns.

It is also essentially a question of training the men who will handle them.

In still a wider sense, the manifold and complete facilities of repair, supply, replacement and maintenance must have a suitable base on the West Coast.

Viewed strategically, the Pacific is today the front door of the United States. Yet our training centers and our supply sources are almost entirely on the Atlantic.

It is also important to remember that public morale and support of the rearmament program will be considerably bolstered by the presence in the West of the schools and men who will make the same West impregnable against any force that might threaten American peace and security.

FEW REALIZE the extent of the alcoholic beverage industry's contribution to Massachusetts prosperity.

More than forty-five thousand persons are gainfully and steadily employed in the industry's various branches.

To them each week the impressive sum of $1,137,500 is paid in salary and wages.

At the same time, the Commonwealth itself is a principal beneficiary.

Liquor taxes, licenses and excise fees enriched the State Treasury by $10,815,406 in the past twelve months.

And of course, in addition to the above-mentioned regular employes of the industry, thousands of persons working in associated industries are directly and indirectly benefited.

A decade ago the story was very different.

Then the seventy million dollars which the State and people now receive from the alcoholic beverage industry were swelling the bank accounts of Prohibition racketeers.

On The Side

By E. V. DURLING

IN JAPAN, drafting men for military service is very simple. A recruiting sergeant picks out a street at random and goes around knocking at doors and ordering all male residents to come out. At males of military age so assembled he barks: "Fall in!" Said males fall in quickly to avoid getting a swift kick in the pants and are soon marching along dolefully singing the Japanese version of "We're in the Army Now" . . . Mrs. Carmel Snow, style expert, says: "The prettiest women in the world dress like firemen; they never have a dress rehearsal. They care passionately, but ignorantly, for clothes" . . . Hollywoodian writes: "I know a film celebrity who never remembers anyone to whom she has been introduced but whose dog never fails to greet them." You can't beat a good dog for courtesy. Our pup remembers everybody he has been introduced to and wags his whole body in greeting when they call and then runs around as if to say: "Look who's here. Swell of them to call, what?"

TALENTED AND BEAUTIFUL IRENE DUNNE

She's One of Film Colony's Happiest Married Women

TWO of Hollywood's most happily married women are Irene Dunne and Claudette Colbert. Both are married to doctors. As a rule, a doctor is master in his own house. He demands respect from his wife. To him that "obey" in the marriage ceremony does not mean maybe . . . You know the parking space you often come upon; just about wide enough for your car. And you spend from five to 50 minutes trying to edge your bus in. How would you on such an occasion like to park your car sidewise in seven seconds? A Californian has invented a device which he claims will enable you to do just that. He says he has done it in a public demonstration.

LUCKY PEOPLE are those who can fall asleep anywhere at any time. Those who never take on weight no matter how much or what they eat. Those who never have had a toothache in their life . . . The wife of Viennese composer Franz Lehar is a Jewess. "The Merry Widow" by Lehar is Hitler's favorite light opera. So Frau Lehar has been made an "honorary Aryan" . . . Ninety per cent of the women who have silver fox furs seem to have no idea as to what is the right time and place to wear them . . . National Doughnut Week starts October 28th. An important time in the history of the doughnut will be January 1, 1941. On that date the hole in the doughnut will be made a quarter of an inch smaller. It is now one and a quarter inches in circumference. I like crullers much better than doughnuts.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

MY DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16—After writing my column in my son's office, I went back to his apartment to see a friend and have lunch. Early in the afternoon, Mrs. Melvyn Douglas took me out to attend a tea given by a large group of Democratic women. Later, my son called for me and we went together to see his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Benjamin.

It was James' night for drilling with his battalion of marines, so I went and watched him from the gallery. I can't say that anything military has ever given me much pleasure, for I still hope that some day we will reach a state of civilization where we can find, as William James suggested so long ago, the "moral equivalent for war."

Since that time has not yet arrived, however, it seems to me that all of us must prefer to see the young people we care about receive the training which cannot fail to be of use to them in everyday life because of the value of discipline.

In one way or another we must all be disciplined sometime, and it helps us in every occupation.

The training of our men is of value to the nation, for a trained man in case of war or any emergency, can render better service and protection to himself than if he were an inexperienced recruit.

TWO OF THE BOYS, James and Franklin, Jr., took courses in college and have had periods of training during the years since then. Since they are in the reserves, they only know that when they are called, their service lasts for the duration of the emergency.

It does make for a slight uncertainty as to the arrangements to be made in business and the normal activities of life. for the emergency may last for a few months, or it may last a few years.

I think, perhaps, a great many of the people who have been executives, are going to meet the greatest test of their ability as such. Now they must choose the right people to leave in charge and so organize that they, themselves, will be as little missed as possible. Not easy to do, but it can be done.

WE WERE UP early, for I had to take the plane at 7 o'clock. I hope to have a glimpse of my friend, Mrs. Edward McCauley of San Francisco, at the airport there and to file this column, since it might be too late at the next stop.

In the early afternooon, I hope to arrive in Portland, Oregon, to spend a few hours with my friend, Mrs. Nan Wood Honeyman, who is running again this year for Congress. Later, I speak for the League of Women Voters and go on by plane to Seattle, if the weather continues to be kind.

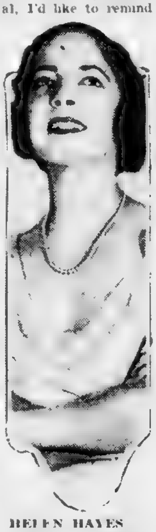
DAVID NIVEN CHEERS TIRED BUDDIES

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—David Niven, who left one of the most promising careers in Hollywood to join his regiment in England, took a squadron of soldiers through the midlands practicing night maneuvers. When they returned, the fatigued soldiers seemed disconsolate . . . Niven succeeded in restoring their spirits by addressing them this way: "Look, men—I know all of you are making splendid sacrifices. I know that loneliness reaches you at night when you start thinking of your loved ones and the girls at home. But our cause is so great we all must make these sacrifices. If you men think you're giving up a great deal, I'd like to remind you of something I'm sacrificing, too—for instance: Monday night, dinner with Paulette Goddard. Tuesday, Rosalind Russell. Wednesday, Hedy Lamarr. Thursday, Ann Sheridan. Friday, Ginger Rogers, etc., etc." . . . The Administration soon will announce a woolen deal now being negotiated with Great Britain—a deal which will assure this country of adequate supplies, no matter what happens . . . HELEN HAYES: Kaufman & Hart must pay the cast of their new show, "George Washington Slept Here," full salaries during the delay of the show's opening—a delay which was necessitated by the death of Berton Churchill, who had one of the feature roles. Equity ruled that Churchill's death is not "an act of God" . . . CLIFTON FADIMAN: After two years of coaxing, Herbert Bayard Swope will appear on "Information Please" Oct. 22.



HELEN HAYES

COUNT RENE de CHAMBRUN: Pierre Cot, the former French Air Minister whom you attacked in a speech before the Overseas Press Club last week—a speech in which you said that the breakdown of the French air force was the cause of defeat—is in this country now, a refugee from the Vichy government . . . JACK OAKIE: If the American public indicates a liking for "The Dictator," Charlie Chaplin will revive his silent movie, "The Gold Rush," merely adding some musical background . . . GEORGE GALLUP: Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., entered Willkie territory recently when he went up to Bar Harbor, Maine. It was purely a social visit—to visit his mother-in-law. Young Franklin arrived wearing a Roosevelt button . . Mrs. duPont noticed that button and asked him to remove it . . . "Okay, I'll take it off," Roosevelt agreed, "if you take down the Willkie signs."

GEORGE RAFT: The "Mack Gray" who purchased all those racing horses in the sale at Saratoga was "Killer" Gray, your body guard. Gray, however, wasn't buying the horses for himself. Tom Taggart, the Indiana sportsman, was putting up the money and allowing Mack to bid for the horses in his name . . . AL CAPONE: W. H. Stevenson, editor-in-chief of Britain's Ministry of Information, has a new name for the anti-aircraft guns used in the defense of London. He refers to them as "Chicago pianos" . . . MAYOR LaGUARDIA: Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., was listed among your Fusion supporters who refused to follow your lead in endorsing the President. But Oscar Ewing, Hughes' law partner, is Roosevelt's Eastern campaign manager.

MRS. OSCAR LEVANT: Congratulations . . . Incidentally, Baron de Rothschild was at the hospital visiting his daughter who also was having a baby. "I hear you make jokes," the Baron told Oscar, "so come in and talk to my daughter" . . . After Oscar learned that you and your daughter were doing well, he phoned some of his friends. He hadn't slept in 40 hours, his hair was disheveled and he needed a shave . . . "At last," he told them, "I look like Oscar Levant" . . . JIM FARLEY: This is the real story behind Harold Ickes leaving for a Northwest speaking tour, and returning when he discovered that his speaking engagements had been cancelled. Ickes was scheduled to make an address in Oregon—where the Democratic leaders objected. "If I can't make that Oregon speech," Ickes threatened, "I won't make any at all." A naive subordinate therefore cancelled all the speeches—taking Ickes at his word.

BOSTON
After DARK

SLEUTHS WORKING FOR MR. WHISKERS have turned up a Boston-based bootlegging ring of sizeable proportions . . . The gang is charged with [illegible] Canadian liquor across the border (to Boston) without acknowledging Uncle Sam's right to a revenue tax . . . Operations had been underway on a big scale only a very short time when the T-Men intervened.

PEGGY DOYLE'S BEACON HILL abode was burgled of $60 by a vandal whose bent for destruction caused him to rip a can-can costume to shreds . . . The costume decorated a bottle of perfume which Drama Critic Peggy had put away to give away for Christmas . . . Sigrid Dagnia, who was Zorina's understudy in "Higher and Higher," impressed Ray Egan so favorably that the Mayfair's ballerina can be expecting an offer.

RAY HAS WRITTEN THE book and lyrics of an operetta entitled "Were We In Love," and Harry Tierney who composed "Alice Blue Gown," has written the music . . . Boston, incidentally, gave Mr. Egan the thrill of his recent life . . . When Ranny Weeks introduced him as the writer of "Japanese Sandman" and "Until We Meet Again," a ripple of applause broke out . . . When the band went into "Until We Meet Again," there was a salvo of handicaps and cheers. (It never happened in New York.)

THE EGAN-TIERNEY combination has evolved a half-dozen "pop" tunes which Ray demonstrated to friends while in town . . . If Vaughn Monroe or Everett Hoagland are willing to follow Phil Harris' suit and evade the song-pluggers for as long as one original number, the Egan-Tierney repertoire of unpublished tunes has a "natural" for each band . . . "The Show Must Go On" is a march (arranged in dance time) that would just suit Vaughn's baritone.

AND AN INSPIRED PIECE of song-writing called "Beach Pajamas," in this opinion, would fit perfectly the sweet-swing style of the Hoagland unit . . . Speaking of "The Show Must Go On," Tin Pan Alley is averse to songs (the boys say) which might be construed as "war-songs" . . . Only Mr. Egan and his late partner Dick Whiting, had a hunch that "Until We Meet Again" would prove to be a "war-song" . . . It went on to be the biggest American song hit of World War days . . . It was written and sold as a straight ballad in May, 1917.

AUDREY CHRISTIE'S performance in "Return Engagement" is winning raves from show-folk . . . Audrey hasn't had a flashy chance since she played Stonewall Jackson in "Sailor, Beware" . . . The Copley Theatre's first venture designed for Broadway, "Boyd's Shop" as it was called in Boston and "Boyd's Daughter" for New York, lasted exactly three days in the big town . . . "Return Engagement" is playing the Copley while the lady who was practically perfect in Author Lawrence Riley's first play, "Personal Appearance," is working downtown—at the Wilbur.

AND IT WAS AT THE WILBUR that the [illegible] Gladys George, attracted attention as the leading woman of a second-rate stock company . . . She stepped from that ill-starred enterprise into the starring role of "Personal Appearance" in New York, quite a jump . . . New York gossip has it that Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy is going to return to the motion picture business either as successor to Will Hays or as an independent producer.

AUDREY CHRISTIE
Wins Raves From the Show Folk

THE STATUS of "Independent Producers" is expected to be greatly improved when Special Asst. Atty. Gen. Thurman Arnold's plaguing investigation of the industry takes its final toll . . . From unimpeachable authorities we hear that Mr. Arnold has refused to be "softened up" . . . And an industry foreboding is that "block-booking," as now practiced, is doomed . . . The effect of all this on the country's fifth largest industry will be no less than earth-shaking . . . The very biggest "names" are quaking.

W. C. FIELDS TO BE UNCLE DON

By Louella O. Parsons

W. C. Fields

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 16.—The deal for W. C. Fields to click in at 20th Century-Fox is [illegible] Darryl Zanuck wants Bill for the role of "[illegible]" in "The Great American Broadcast." From [illegible] it's right up his street. But, if he accepts the part and he's reading the script now, [illegible] announcer who tells bedtime stories to [illegible] children but he imbibes too freely and what he says to the little kiddies isn't what they expect [illegible]. So far Milton Berle and his new nose are [illegible] attractions lined up for this radio comedy, but we should be getting new names every day.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Mischa [illegible] Nora [illegible] in a huddle at Emerald Lodge. Hope it means a reconciliation. Mischa telling his troubles to Kay Griffith the night before at Victor Hugo's. She weds his pal, Broderick Crawford, in a few weeks; Gilbert Roland will teach tennis at Palm Springs for Charles Farrell between pictures.

Peggy Diggins is back from New York looking mighty well. She says the first place she visited when she got back to New York was the Stork Club. Don't blame her; so will I if I get a minute; Charlot's Revue is terrific this week with Bob Hope, Gertrude Niesen and Rudy Vallee. It has gradually been getting better and this is the last week.

The pretty girl with Owen Davis, Jr., at the Beverly Derby was Sam Woods' pretty daughter. Her stage name is Katharine Stevens; we drove into a drive-in eatery and parked side by side with Tony Martin and Lana Turner. They had the column and were reading it. So I suggested they give me the news of their marriage first and if their romance is still as hot a year from now they'll wed.

Mickey Rooney and Ronald Colman were among the few actors at the Charlie Chaplin preview of "The Great Dictator." The press took up so many seats there wasn't room for anybody else; Genevieve Haugan, screen writer, and Max Nassack, Columbia director, were secretly joined over the week-end.

Linda Brent, formerly engaged to Lyle Talbot, stepping out with Cy Bartlett; looks very much as if Henry Hathaway will direct Gary Cooper in "Sergeant York."

That was a very beautiful brunette with Antonio Moreno at the La Conga; John Shelton and Ann Rutherford are seeing each other off the screen as well as on.

JUST HEARD from Jack Warner, who is in New York, and he tells me that he is making tests of Hartzell Spence, author of "One Foot in Heaven," for the lead. Says Jack: "Spence is an extremely good looking young fellow with a background in [illegible] preparatory school and University of Iowa, and he looks exactly like his father did as a young man. If he photographs as well as he looks he will be signed without delay."

This is the only time as far as I know that an actor has played his father and the hero of his own novel. Spence, Jack writes, is perfectly willing to make the tests but only on condition that he [illegible] privilege of [illegible] the part if he doesn't [illegible], since he's not an actor. This "One Foot in Heaven" [illegible] the story of a Methodist minister [illegible] to get [illegible] clergyman.

DAVID NIVEN, who covered himself with glory [illegible] was one of the very first actors to [illegible] for [illegible] England, is about to turn actor again. With these heart breaking headlines it seems [illegible] any pictures are being planned in London; Robert Kane is trying to obtain permission for David [illegible] star [illegible] Century-Fox's "Spitfire Squadron" [illegible].

Kane, who was in charge of TCF's foreign [illegible] the war came, has completed all [illegible] for this propaganda picture. Of course Sam [illegible] who has Niven under contract, has yet to give his consent, but since Sam isn't making any pictures [illegible] it isn't likely he will refuse.

"Spitfire Squadron," with David (who is [illegible] bridegroom since we saw him last) will be filmed at [illegible], a spot comparatively safe from Nazi bombs.

Smart Set Functions

By BETTY ALDEN

SOME SORT of informal entertainment—usually a songfest or bridge—often follows a debutante luncheon . . . but guests at Natalie White's debut will not have a chance to linger very long over their ices and demitasse . . .

The party will be a luncheon at the Hotel Continental in Cambridge just before the Harvard-Princeton game, Nov. 2. and will provide a jolly get-together of some 100 friends of the debutante before a hasty dash to the Stadium . . .

Natalie is the daughter of Mrs. Alfred J. White of Winchester and one of the many debutantes who attended Jean Roberts' coming out party at the Algonquin Club today . . .

Jean, who was voted the prettiest girl on the North Shore this past summer, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Roberts of Winchester and Annisquam . . . Setting off her blonde hair and brown eyes she chose a dress of brown and silver lame for her debut costume . . . A large brown hat, draped with a filmy brown veil, and a corsage of brown orchids completed her outfit . . .

BARSHA POWERS and Jean Roberts caught unawares by the photographer as they indulged in a bit of jovial repartee at a recent debutante party. Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Roberts of Winchester, makes her debut at a luncheon today at the Algonquin Club. Barsha is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Powers.

She's Sure to Get the Nod

THERE'S ONE debutante who's certain to get the nod from Vincent Club officials when they announce the names of the girls who will be admitted to membership into the sacred confines of the club sometime in November . . .

That deb is Caroline Dabney, daughter of Mrs. George Dabney of Old Tannery Farm, Medfield . . . Some years ago Caroline's aunt, the late Caroline Miller Dabney (Mrs. Augustin Parker) designed the famous Vincent Club insignia which adorns the covers of all the club's periodicals and programs . . . If you've ever been to a Vincent revue you must be familiar with the picture—it's of a girl dressed in the familiar lavender dress and white kerchief which the girls always wear for ushering and selling flowers between the acts . . .

Caroline makes her formal curtsey to society a week from Friday at a dance to be given by her mother at Old Tannery Farm . . . Mrs. Dabney will entertain the ushers at dinner beforehand, and another dinner preceding the dance will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Baker of Millis for debutante Cynthia Thorndike, daughter of Mrs. Richard K. Thorndike of Millis . . .

TIME WAS when the idea of a powder room in the Harvard Club would have made the old grads shudder with indignation . . . but from now on a few luxuriously decorated rooms in the clubhouse are to be invaded by the ladies . . .

Directors of the clubhouse on Commonwealth ave., one of the last strongholds of masculinity in Boston, will be hosts at a cocktail party Saturday after the Army-Harvard game, to show the ladies the beautifully appointed new rooms . . . Crimson and ivory is the color scheme of the new lounge, dressing rooms and gals' dining room . . .

Needle Guild Meets Nov. 24

Mrs. Richard Norris of Chestnut Hill is busy receiving reservations for the annual luncheon of the Boston branch of the Needlework Guild of America which is scheduled for Nov. 14 at the Copley-Plaza.

Devereux Barker, Mrs. Huntington Hardwick, Mrs. Arthur Grannis, Mrs. Winthrop Weatherby, Jr., Miss Ethel Dodd, Mrs. Reginald C. Heath, Miss Eleanor Jones and many others

MRS. MARCUS BEEBE HOSTESS AT LECTURES

Mrs. Marcus Beebe, 2d, will be the hostess at the first of this season's series of Avery lectures at the Copley-Plaza Hotel Friday morning.

Miss Eunice Harriet Avery will open the series with a discussion of "America Takes Inventory—An Appraisal of the Summer." Miss Virginia Stone, Mrs. Roderic N. MacDonald and Miss Constance Learned will be in charge of the door at the opening of the series, which benefit the Children's Hospital.

INFANT SAVIOUR GUILD DANCE AT SOMERSET

Dr. Charles E. Donovan, Bernard J. Baldwin, Robert Hughes and Francis T. Jantzen will serve as ushers for the autumn supper dance of the Guild of the Infant Saviour to be held Wednesday evening in the Balinese Room of the Somerset.

Anne Burnett to Wed

Ceremony Set for Oct. 25

Toasts to the future happiness of Anne Burnett, of Manchester, and Rolin Gallagher, Jr., of Milton, will be proposed over and over at the bridal dinner party to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer of Hamilton on the eve of the wedding, Friday, Oct. 25.

Mr. and Mrs. Ayer's daughter, Mrs. Edward MacNichol, Jr., of Princeton, N. J., will be among the nine attendants at the ceremony in Congregational Church, Manchester, the following afternoon.

The bride's sister, Frances Lowell Burnett, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. John Blodgett, Jr., of Grand Rapids, Mich., will be the honor attendants.

The bridesmaid group will include the bridegroom's younger sister, Anne, who four days before will change her name to Mrs. Hugh T. Putnam at a fashionable wedding in Milton. Other bridesmaids will be Rachel Brooks, Winifred Palmer, Mrs. William C. Hammond, all of Boston, Clarissa Green of Holyoke, Helen Read of New York and Anne Tyler of Richmond, Va.

The future bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis Lowell Burnett of Manchester, and Mr. Gallagher is the son of Mrs. Rolin M. Gallagher of Milton.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

"I CAN'T," she writes, "believe in anything any more. This hate and horror and misery one meets on every side have wiped out every particle of my old-time faith. Yet some lucky people go along as cheerfully as if nothing had happened. I envy them; I wish I could see things as they see them."

YOU CAN! What's holding you? Only yourself. "Belief" isn't something you're born with, lady, like a birthmark. It isn't the result of some special environment or glandular reaction. Nor does it "just happen."

WE BUILD BELIEFS. WE BELIEVE WHAT WE WANT TO BELIEVE.

Fate doesn't doom us to see the seamy side of things. We ourselves choose to see those seams and dwell within their gloom. We deliberately collect evidence to prove that the world is going to the dogs. Yet, if we wished, we could as easily prove that "God's in His heaven and all's well with the world."

For if there's ugliness in the world, there's also beauty. If there's hate and cruelty, there's also love and tenderness, honesty, courage and generosity.

In short, there's as much proof that we're "growing better and better day by day" as that we're growing "worse and worser." And each one of us possesses the power and privilege of picking his side.

AS FOR ME, I choose to believe that the finer things in life are infinitely more potent and important than the fouler ones, and a lot more fun to contemplate. That doesn't mean that I'm blind to the horrors that are happening. I admit they exist—and I'm doing my humble darndest to fight them. But I refuse to believe that such horrors will eventually triumph.

"But no one deliberately believes in ugliness," you protest. "What reason would they have for doing so?"

Quite a number of reasons, stranger—and all of 'em mighty useful in rationalizing their own laziness and self pity, cowardice and conceit. It's always much easier to knock than it is to boost—and far more popular with the other Crybabies and Lazybones. It requires intelligence to see the constructive side of things and fighting courage to have faith in the face of disaster . . . as well as endure the sneers which usually greet such optimism.

BUT ANY SPINELESS SNIPER CAN GRAB THE SPOTLIGHT, WITHOUT ASMITCH OF EXERTION, MERELY BY RIDICULING THE STATUS QUO.

How do I know? Because I've done it. And despised myself for doing so. For, in the end, the Belittler always cheats himself. Whatever the ultimate outcome of our human struggle, it's much more inspiring to believe that we are the Sons of God, rather than a lot of fish-bait.

LONG AGO I made a little credo to cure my own grouching. It's very simple, but it has yanked me out of many a cowardly flop—and may, perhaps, do the same for you. Unless you're hell-bent on keeping your nose in the garbage! Here it is:

MY LIFE IS WHAT I MAKE IT . . . I AM WHAT I BELIEVE AND I CAN CHOOSE WHAT I WISH TO BELIEVE

I can choose to believe that life's a washout . . . or that it's a trail leading steadily up and on toward a nobler scheme of things. There's evidence on either side of the argument, and I can't prove either side.

Love

Unconventional Letter

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The girl in whom my son is interested spent the week-end with us and was given every attention and courtesy. When she left I certainly expected what is known as a "bread and butter" letter. She wrote on a postcard: "Sure had a grand time, especially like your muffins." Was this well-bred?

MOTHER-IN-LAW TO BE.

To say the least, the young lady's bread-and-butter letter on a postcard was certainly unconventional. Young people, imagining they are rushed to death these days, do some pretty queer things. If she impressed you as being a nice girl and had good qualities, I believe I'd overloook the unusual letter of thanks after the visit.

You'll be surprised how quickly and easily you can relieve coughs due to colds, when you try this splendid recipe. It gives you about four times as much cough medicine for your money, and you'll find it truly wonderful, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a pint bottle. Add your syrup and you have a full pint of medicine that will amaze you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

Wine Adds Fine Flavor

By MARTHA LEE

THE USE of wine in cooking is very simple, yet it adds more subtle and delightful flavor to soups, sauces, meat, fish and desserts than many other condiments. Strangely, the wine used in cooking does not impart its own lovely flavor, but somehow brings out an unsuspected goodness in the food itself.

Right here it might be well to state that all of the alcohol in wine passes off when heat is applied, so even the most fastidious teetotaler can enjoy the taste thrill of wine cookery.

NATIONAL WINE WEEK

The period between Oct. 13 and 20 this year is being observed as National Wine Week—and from the wine growers of California come suggestions about the simplicity of cooking with wine, as well as timely recipes.

Shellfish and creamed dishes, they tell us, are natural flavormates with sherry wine and the wine should be added just a few minutes before removing from the heat.

A dry or white wine like hock or sauterne enhances the delicate flavor of chicken and fish. Red meats, on the other hand, require the richness of a dry red wine like claret or Burgundy to bring out their full-bodied flavor. For instance, use a cup of red wine to replace part of the liquid you ordinarily add to pot roast or stew. Roasts have extra zest when basted with red wine.

Sherry is preferred in creamed soups, just as claret is nice in clear soups. The wine should be added shortly before removing soup from the heat.

Desserts and fruit combine best with the sweet wines like sherry, port and muscatel.

Remember that delicate flavor of any wine is reduced by boiling—so avoid letting any mixture containing wine reach the boiling point.

And here's a final tip for wine cooks. If you have a bottle of wine that you are going to keep on hand for cooking purposes only, add 2 or 3 drops of olive oil. The oil will seal the wine from the air and prevent its souring. Once opened, dry wines sour within a week or so, even though you re-cork them tightly. So try to use up your table wine reasonably soon after opening, but for cooking, the dash of oil will preserve the wine indefinitely.

Now for some recipes:

APPLES BAKED IN WINE

6 baking apples
¾ cup brown sugar
3 tsp. butter
6 tbsp. sherry

Core the apples and peel down about one inch from the stem end. Place in baking dish and fill each core cavity with two tablespoons brown sugar and ½ teapsoon butter. Cover the bottom of the pan with water and bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 40 minutes. Baste occasionally with syrup in bottom of pan. Pour one tablespoon wine in core cavities just before removing from oven. Serve with wine flavored whipped cream made by adding two tablespoons powdered sugar and 2 tablespoons wine to each cup of whipped cream.

SPINACH SUPREME

2 cups spinach, fresh cooked or canned
2 tsp. butter
¼ cup white wine
2 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

To drained chopped spinach add other ingredients. Heat, add salt and pepper to taste, and serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

SHERRY GELATIN DESSERT

2 tbsp. gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1¼ cups boiling water
1 cup sugar
¼ tsp. grated lemon rind
3 tbsp. lemon juice
1 cup dry sherry

Soften gelatin in cold water 5 minutes; dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar, lemon rind and juice, mixing well. Strain and cool. Add sherry; turn into 6 individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold and serve with ladyfingers. Makes 6 servings.

You Can Be Beautiful

Lotion Aids Pompadour

By ARLINE GOULD

SO YOUR pompadour isn't behaving itself . . . but sends wispy fronds out and down . . . and you're pretty discouraged about getting that smooth, Harper's Bazaar look? Land's sakes, how do you expect hair that's been brushed downward all its young life to all of a sudden up itself and stay there?

Gibson girl pompadours were trained upward from the schoolgirl stage, when hair was pulled up on top of the head and anchored with a big bow (we remember our family album, if you want to know).

You've been brought up on a glamour girl bob . . . so this sudden pompadour craze means your hair needs more discipline than a hair brush can give it. After all, you're asking it to go in a completely opposite direction to which it's accustomed!

It needs a marvelously contrived new liquid, which isn't a lacquer, and isn't a brilliantine, but seems to be a so-clever hair beauty aid that's just between. Transparent, harmless, instant drying, it keeps hair in place until it's combed out.

It's thin, fragrant, topaz-tinted . . . and it does make your hair shine like chromium. And those little ostrich-feather wisps that might float away from the smoothly-brushed pompadour are coaxed so stay neat and close, and ever so svelte. Apply with your fingertips or atomizer.

Now we let you in on a small secret . . . many of those extravagantly lovely coiffures you see in the big fashion magazines stay up with the cooperation and through the courtesy of just a "hair stay" liquid. It's a beauty trick which will save you much fretting about hair that "you can't do a thing with," because once you arrange it, the "hair stay" will do the rest.

If you'd like to learn all about this "pompadour hair stay," which is but 50 cents for a bottle which will last for months, phone Arline Gould, LIberty 4000, week days except Saturday, or write, care of the Boston American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Open Door

By Louis Davidson

The Cast of Characters in "Open Door"

MARTIN BROWN, who has lost everything, including

RAIN sloshed over the tops of his rubbers and pounded through the worn places in his old cravanette coat as he plodded wearily along the pleasant little suburban street. Or it would have been pleasant in sunlight, with the wide branched trees murmuring in friendly fashion and the quiet life of the small community about its busy way. But Martin Brown did not have the heart to look ahead to more agreeable weather.

Surveying for an advertising firm was bad enough in good weather for an ordinary man. But, to think that he, who had seen his name on office doors as executive could find nothing better to do than this—interviewing housewives about what kind of washing powder they used, if they liked large sized or small sized cans in canned goods, if they ever tested the materials in the bedding or towels they bought, and so on and so on.

The information gained was of inestimable worth to the advertising company and netted Martin $5 a day, which fed and sheltered his body—but the work did disintegrating things to his soul and spirit.

It seemed so much worse on rainy days, although, if he wished, he did not have to work in inclement weather. But every day counted and he knew he would find women home when it rained. But how tired, how utterly weary he was of it. Either the housewife was busy and could give him little time or she was garrulous and gave him too much, or she was suspicious of any knocker at the-door and would not give him any time at all. He didn't know which was worse. He only knew he was sick of the weather, sick of the job and sick of himself.

For he admitted that much of this was his own fault. After he and Marcia had separated, he hadn't cared much what became of him. He had grown careless, had drunk a little too much, had neglected clients and his work and had developed a "[illegible]" which didn't sit well on an executive.

Result: He had ceased to be an executive, had ceased later even to have a job. But he just didn't care, until the bank account got so low that sheer instinct of self-preservation had compelled him to hunt something.

A DESPERATE MAN

Applying to one of the real friends who had clung to him, Martin was a little shocked to find that this friend helpful and all as he was, could not give him the type of position he thought he should have had.

"We're trying out new ideas all the time Martin," Bart told him "We have our staff filled just now. But, you are an advertising man and would be immensely valuable to our advertising business. However, the only thing I can offer is a house-to-house surveying job. But it pays $5.00 a day and that is cakes and coffee at any rate."

Martin had sullenly refused at first, but actual hunger had driven him back reluctantly to ask for the chance again. Bart was kind, but firm. "Friendship doesn't count for anything," he warned, "and if you don't make good, I can't do anything." But he shook Martin's shoulder affectionately, "snap out of it. You've got too much on the ball to go under. All you need is to stop looking at the toes of your shoes and start looking people in the eye again."

Martin didn't know that Bart was testing him, that he [illegible] grit there was a [illegible] approaching his old [illegible]. But Bart wanted Martin to [illegible] himself first, without the [illegible] bait being held out. For Martin had gone pretty far in the [illegible] stage of "don't care" [illegible] to oblivion.

For days now Martin had been taking stock [illegible] fact that he was working [illegible] could not help [illegible] stimulating effect on him. He was too good a natural [illegible] salesman not to want to "sell" his work and himself. He found much to interest him in the [illegible] views he gathered of various commodities.

He was eating and sleeping regularly, exercising and resting and, more than he realized, he was coming back to a more normal viewpoint and acceptance of the world in general.

He was thinking deeply today as he trudged along. The rhythmic drip of the rain kept his thoughts swinging steadily. The long stretches between the houses in this pretty little corner of the city gave him time. Perhaps he hadn't been quite fair to Marcia. After all they had had their home and the children and they might have patched things up.

But she was so—so—interfering. She was thrifty and continually "nagged" to use his own interpretation of her solicitude regarding their bank account. She wanted him home on time, wanted to know what he was doing when he wasn't home. She had developed a permanent little crease of irritation between her eyes—eyes which once he had thought so softly and soulfully blue, but which had become hard and suspicious.

That was all true about her—but what about himself? He had become touchy too. He would come home with the proverbial chip on his shoulder—and Marcia always was ready to knock it off. Then she had accused him of spending his spare time with other women.

He snorted to himself as he remembered how futile his denials were. He had accused her then of tiring of him and perhaps wanting some other man. He remembered the startled, hurt look she gave him at that—but she quickly drew the cloak of indifference around her and did not give the dignity of an answer.

JOBLESS AND HOPELESS

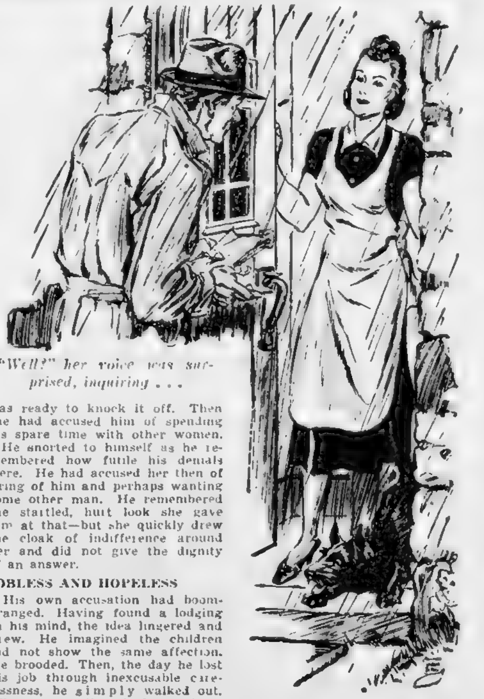
His own accusation had boomeranged. Having found a lodging in his mind, the idea lingered and grew. He imagined the children did not show the same affection. He brooded. Then, the day he lost his job through inexcusable carelessness, he simply walked out. What money they had was in a joint account so he knew she would be comfortable for awhile. Then—he grinned wryly—he supposed she would get a divorce on the grounds of desertion and go with the "other guy."

He saw now how unreasonable he had been, how he had jumped to conclusions. He had thought that, when he was well established again he would stage a real "Old Homestead" come-back with money, position, everything to bolster his own pride. But he found everything seemingly against such a denouncement. Not only was it difficult for him to get a "position" but it was hard to land a "job."

He had intended at first, when he secured his present berth, to keep it only long enough to get a few dollars ahead. But, as the hard pavement-pounding, and regular eating and sleeping habits grew, he had begun to look at things more normally. He would stick it out. He really was learning some valuable angles. When business opened up in the Fall, perhaps he could put to use what he had learned and either go ahead with Bart's firm or get a chance with another company. Now—the next house—he would be glad to get under shelter a few minutes.

It was a pretty little place, a strip of grass between the porch and the sidewalk, a few flowers hugging the foundations of the house. A sign at the door, "Furnished Rooms," presaged a free use of commodities and his work that day consisted of learning all housewives wanted to tell about soap chips, shampoos, bath bubbles and other cleansing agents.

His ring at the bell brought a barking dog first, then the door opened and an attractive matron faced him. Martin looked at her. She stared at him. "Well?" her voice was surprised, inquiring. Margulped, then plunged bravely.



"Well?" her voice was surprised, inquiring . . .

"I am making a survey for the Haley Advertising Company," he explained hurriedly. "We are interested in—in what kind of soap chips you use—and bath bubbles, if any." The bewildered look in the woman's eyes softened. She smiled faintly. She held the door back.

"Will you come in?"

Martin stumbled over the threshold, then turned into the pleasant living-room. He sat down. The woman sat opposite him.

"You do—advertising?" her voice was soft, questioning. Martin gulped.

"I did—then I lost my job. I couldn't get anything else than this."

She made a little movement towards him, then checked herself. Martin was leafing through his forms. He singled one out.

"To a great extent, when I haven't a maid to help."

"Oh," he looked at her keenly. "Is this your house—I mean, you are not rooming?" She shook her head.

"No, I am not rooming. I keep house- I always have kept house. I like—" her voice dropped like music. "I like—a home."

Martin shuffled the papers again.

"What kind of soap chips do you use? And why?" He had started down the prescribed list of questions.

The woman answered cheerfully and fully. When she had told him the size of the house, he gulped again. "You—take roomers?" She nodded gravely.

"Yes, I lost him. I can see now how I lost him. I had to fill my life some way and this seemed the best."

Martin stood up. "You—you didn't fill your life any other way?" He gulped again. "Oh—I haven't asked your name yet."

"Mrs. Brown—Mrs. Martin Brown." Martin took a step forward.

"You didn't—there wasn't anyone—?" He was shaking.

The woman smiled fondly. "You silly silly man. Of course there wasn't, any more than there was someone else with you. We both were foolish, Martin—but you were more foolish than I. Why didn't you let me know where you went, what you were doing?"

Martin reached blindly towards her as he dropped into a chair. She came to him, put her arms around his neck and drew his head close to her breast.

"My dear," her voice almost sang, "my dear—my very dear."

"It's been so long—a year we've lost," Martin choked.

But his wife shook her head briskly, she lifted his head and kissed him gently, sweetly. "We never lose the time it takes us to become sensible. We made a lot of mistakes. We both know it. Let's forget them, and now—" she was all wife again. "Telephone the office, tell them it is such a bad day you are cutting the work short. I've still some of your clothes here—how you need a clean shirt, and your necktie is frayed. Tst! Tst! Run upstairs and take a shower—go get your things from wherever you've been living—you can do that this evening. And you've let your hair grow too long. Oh—how you need a general going over. Hurry—the children soon will be home from school."

And Martin, as he obediently trotted upstairs, knew he really was—back home.

Voters in Late Rush to Register

Corridors at Boston City Hall were filled with men and women waiting to register to vote today even before the registration office opened, following a day that election officials described as the "busiest in the city's history."

Deadline on registration is at 10 p. m. tonight, and registration today is held only at City Hall.

A total of 7025 persons—3808 women and 3217 men—registered yesterday, bringing to 385,815 the number of registered voters in Boston.

William A. Motley, Jr., chairman of the election commission, said the final total of voters might reach 390,000.

50 Ships Destroyed In Bombay Hurricane

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 16 (AP)—One of the worst hurricanes in Bombay's history, with winds reaching 75 miles an hour, swept the city last night and this morning, damaging buildings and destroying between 50 and 100 fishing craft in the harbor.

491,054 More N. Y. City Voters

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (AP)—A smashing rise of almost a half-million New York city's registered voters over the 1936 total was recorded today at the close of a six-day registration period.

The total from the city's five boroughs was 3,391,238, or 491,054 more than the previous record of four years ago.

Normally a Democratic stronghold, New York city gave President Roosevelt 2,041,347 votes in 1936, compared with 665,951 for Alf Landon.

Registration four years ago, in which more interest was evidenced than at any time before, reached 2,900,131 in New York city. The presidential vote was 2,777,770.

Traffic Belt Inventor Dies in Back Bay

Perley G. Tilton, who as a Boston police officer won fame for his inventions of the white "traffic belts" and waterproof uniform protectors, died today at his home in Buswell st., Back Bay.

Tilton was born in Sandow, N. H., in 1876. He joined the Boston police force in 1904. Tilton retired in 1914 to take control of a factory which manufactured his inventions.

ATHLETES GET BREAK IN FIRST DRAFT CALL

As Greater Boston's professional and collegiate athletes registered for the draft today, sports fans throughout the city were asking:

"Will Boston College lose Charlie O'Rourke, Gene Goodreault, Henry Toczlowski et al. before the Holy Cross game?

"Will Vito Tamulis, Tom Earley, Elbie Fletcher and other major leaguers from Greater Boston be called before the next campaig starts?

"Will promising young rookies like Ulysses Lupien of the Red Sox, Eddie Waitkus of the Cubs, Eddie Pellegrini of the Red Sox and Joe Callahan of the Bees lose their chance at a big league career after earning itby their sparkling work in the minors the past few seasons?"

The answer would seem to be No—at least until war is declared.

The draft rule states that no college student will be subject to call until next July 1, so that Boston College and Holy Cross, Harvard and Yale will be at full strength for their football classics this year at least.

And it is unlikely that Tamulis, Waitkus, Earley and the rest will go in the first call.

Their cases are strictly up to the local draft board, and in all probability they will be deferred for a while because of the 650,000 registering in the state, the army wants only 32,800 in this first roundup. And there are 162,000 in Class I.

That means only 1 in 5 will be drawn, and it is thought that the athletes will get a break because of their "amusement value."

IVY LEAGUE SLUMP HITS GRID GAMBLERS

By FRANK FENWAY

The declining football fortunes of the New England Ivy League, Harvard, Dartmouth and Yale, have a lot of gents in this town worried, and they're the most univied looking lot you ever did see.

Yup, most of the weeping and wailing over the failure of one of the hallowed trio to come up with a top flight club this season is being done by those eminent characters who occupy the right field bleachers at the baseball game and the ringside tables at the night clubs—the professional gamblers.

The gamblers, or "the boys" as they are referred to in "sporting circles," aren't shedding their tears for sentimental reasons, however. They're suffering advance pains from what looks like a solid boot in the bankroll.

OLD GRADS SOFT

Since the gamblers discovered what a lucrative field for racketeering football is about a half-dozen years ago, the old grads from the Ivy colleges have been their softest touches.

The Ivy grads are, naturally, equipped with the finest sort of educational background, but they can't hold a candle to "the boys" when it comes to high finance.

Let's say both Harvard and Yale go through the season undefeated and the final ball game is to be played at the stadium.

ATTEND "NIGHT BEFORE"

The "night before" is in full swing and alumni of both schools are crowding the hotels and night spots; bragging about what a humdinger of a ball club their alma-mater has come up with.

Our chum, the gambler, mixes into the conversation, mentions, if it's a Harvard group, that Yale has a pretty good football team, and in five minutes he has about $3000 bet at odds of 1-3.

Then all he has to do is find a group of Yale men, announce that he sort of likes Harvard, and a boatload of irate Eli grads bet three grand at similar odds on Yale.

Well, that's not too tough to figure. The gambler has wagered $2000 and no matter which team wins he's bound to get back $3000 for a $1000 profit. Not a bad take.

WINS ON TIES

And generally the gambler stipulates that in case of a tie he wins, so that if the teams happen to wind up in a deadlock why then our friend pockets the $6000, and wonders why the hades anybody bothers to go to school.

But in seasons such as this, when the records of the clubs are only mediocre, the grads don't have the alma mammy pride that makes for the unloosening of the bankroll and the pickings for the mob aren't fat.

But don't worry folks "the boys" won't starve to death. They also have another little racket during the football season which gives them an even better take.

Calling All Ears, or Notes to You, Dear Public

AD NAUSEUM—Why do college sport officials never view with jaundiced eye or point the scornful finger when THEIR varsities are mowing down all rival varsities. So here comes Yale's newly inducted chairman of athletics, Ogden D. Miller, with the mournful blurt, ". . . intercollegiate football is reaching a new peak of emphasis, surpassing that of previous years . . ." No doubt about it! But tenants of glass dwellings shouldn't heave dornicks. For Yay-ule, sanitary as it is in the question of coaxing beefy kids to college, is in the football business as emphatically as Sheldon Fairbanks' Boston Bears. They and their Hedera Helox (All right then, Ivy!) colleagues own mammoth sport craters, hire publicity agents to wangle free lineage in the daily prints, advertize their games in subways and street cars and charge upwards of $3.30 for an 18-inch squat. That's a form of emphasis too! One inclines an ear vainly to catch the squawk of some college mogul when HIS varsity juggernaut is mangling the opposition. No Penn hearts are bleeding for Yale. No Cornell tears are dropping for Army. And no Michigan commiserations are being mailed to Harvard.

AUSTEN LAKE

Squelched spelling-B—When Michigan's 110 trumpet tooters, glockenspiel-tinklers and piccolo-pickers marched at Soldiers Field Saturday they did NOT spell the letters of a popular middle priced auto. The well known automotive company uniforms, instrumentalizes, hauls and hotels the band, which repays the investment by forming "B-U-I-C-K" in its quadrilles. But not at Harvard! Hearing of the commercial tie-up and permitting no advertising (except in programs) Bill Bingham wired, please, not to cut this particular dido here. The band leader courteously concurred.

Murphy Boosters, Army's Purity

SPUD HERESY—Never missing a chance to plug their particular product—potatoes—the Idaho Chamber of Commerce is sending a truckload of their earth-apples for sample distribution at the B. C. game Saturday. I'd hate to referee that one. Incidentally B. C. in its first three games (Centre, Tulane and Temple) has played to a record total of 83,000 compared with 45,000 at its initial trio last year (Lebanon Valley, St. Joseph's and Florida).

Hygienic recruiting—The Army football squad, arriving in Boston Thursday night, and practicing at Soldiers Field next day, is one collegiate outfit never tainted by accusations of proselyting. They don't have to! The Academy automatically awards its handpicked, physically perfect specimens free board, room, tuition and spending money. Yet Army was bumped by Cornell last week, 45-0.

To lovers of legal form—Bench warrants recently issued for Boston miscreant's caught wagering with book makers read, "For registering bets on a certain lottery upon the result of a contest of speed, skill and endurance of a certain beast, to wit, a horse."

To an erroneous reader—"Sir—A bets Yale's Bowl is largest college football stadium in the country. B bets Ohio State. Which is correct?"

Ans.—Neither! Yale seats 73,000, Ohio State 81,000. California's Coliseum at Los Angeles is largest with 110,000.

P. D.'s Masterpiece, All-All

HARVARD REBUTTAL—In refutation of this pillar's hint that Harvard in Haughton's time wheedled big, burly buffaloes into school, here is a roll call received from an outraged alumnus. It contains the names of the players of Haughton's masterpiece, the 1911 team, plus the lineage and prep school.

B. C.'s Rival Underrated

The Vandals are on their way—but don't call out the militia. It's only a representative group of young Americans who make up the grid squad of Idaho University, next opponent on the calling list of the mighty Boston College Eagle.

The boys from a land that's so proud of its potatoes will attempt to stop the mad rush of the Leahy clan at Fenway Park Saturday afternoon.

MET TOUGH FOE

Though its record indicates otherwise, Idaho is bringing a rugged two fisted flock of gridders. Against Oregon State, Washington and Gonzaga, three fine opponents played thus far this semester, the Vandals had absolutely no success. Perhaps it's because so many of his players are sophomores that Coach Ted Bank's team has been unable to punch out its initial victory this semester.

Starting the season Coach Bank had, among others, 20 sophomores, all of whom were considered valuable frosh gridders last fall, and 16 lettermen. It's from this pair of groups that the squad of 33 players who are making the trip was chosen.

LEAHY CAUTIOUS

Though the Vandals have yet to crash the ranks of Saturday afternoon victors Boston College's Frank Leahy isn't taking the much tossed about visitors lightly—not by a sack of Idaho potatoes.

"It's eleven men against eleven more, and anything can happen," is the way the Eagle mentor puts it.

Johnny Druze, the old Ram who did scouting honors when Idaho squared off against Gonzaga last week had this to say:

"They weren't half as bad as the score indicates (Gonzaga, 21-0), and they're awfully big. They made some mistakes, but I suppose that's because of the predominance of sophomores on the squad. We'll have trouble with them."

VANDALS STRONG AT END

The greatest strength in the Idaho camp is, from all accounts at the ends and the halfback slots. Five letter winning wings and Vic Berllus, a 205 sophomore make up the end squad which is on its way to Boston.

Berllus, who is listed in the Vandal publicity flyer as a "big handed dandy" and Paul Ryan, 194 pound senior, who'll captain Idaho against the Eagles will probably get the call to start against Boston College's All America Gene Goodreault and either Henry "Hank" Woronicz or Alex Lukachik.

ACUFF IN KICKING ROLE

Earl Acuff, who'll handle the kicking assignment, Charlie Atkinson, Rex Enkeling and Rudy Franklin are letter winning halfbacks with the squad LaVern Bell, senior fullback and Ken Cox, 207 pound sophomore halfback, with the first four named, have been tabbed "backs to watch."

No, the high flying Eagle probably won't have to call out any militia when the Vandal comes to town—but it will keep its left talon high.

Tom Keady to Quit Lowell High Post

TOM KEADY

Schoolboy football will lose one of its most colorful figures at the close of this season when Coach Tom Keady, Lowell high school mentor, retires from the ranks to enter business.

Keady's three-year contract at the Merimac Valley schol expires this year, and the former Dartmouth star has stated that he would not sign again.

Keady will always be remembered as the fellow who wrote the Dartmouth football song, "As the Backs Go tearing By." Keady, while working his way through college as a short order cook in a diner, hit upon the tune, completing the lyrics in 1902.

Keady captained baseball and football at Wakefield high school for three years before entering Dartmouth, where he carried on as a star athlete in both sports between working hours.

After graduation, he took over an assistant coaching job at Andover Academy in 1905 and has been active in this role since.

eKady moved to Bates as line coach then became head man in baseball and basketball and assistant in football from 1907 to 1911. He took over the reins at Lehigh University for nine years before moving into the professional ranks for two years.

Keady's pro team, the Massillon Tigers of Ohio, included such All-America's as Knute Rockne,

HUSKIES HANG 'BILL BATES'

Northeastern's victory over Springfield last Saturday has inspired the Husky students to such an extent that they have planned extensive rallies for the next three days. The action started today with the mock trial of Bill Bates.

Bates turned out to be an anemic looking specimen, wearing a Bates football uniform. Judge George Shanker found him guilty of having a team too weak to keep the Huskies from scoring, and he will be hanged.

DOG TRACK TAX JUMP SOUGHT

State taxes on dog track bets would be increased from 3½ to a flat seven per cent under a bill on file today with the clerk of the Senate.

The seven per cent bill, sponsored by Sen. Thomas J. Lane of Lawrence, was defeated in the last session when a sliding scale was imposed for taxes on dog racing.

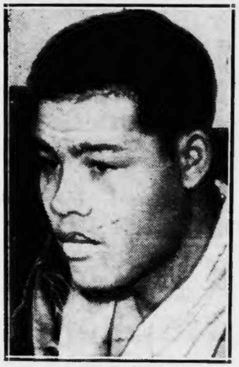
Mr. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

BILLY CONN will be taking a million dollar gamble when he comes rushing out of his corner at the Garden on Friday night to battle Al McCoy. The biggest plunger in the history of the American turf never took such a risk.



JOE LOUIS

Conn at the age of 22 has a fortune ahead of him if he can keep winning. If Billy can triumph over Joe Louis next year, he is certain to earn a million dollars by the power of his fists, his speed and dazzling boxing ability. Conn has to get by Louis to realize his ambition to become world's champion and to go skyrocketing tc a fortune.

Conn became the outstanding challenger for a bout with Louis when he knocked out Bob Pastor in 13 rounds. Unless Conn meets with a defeat, there will not be any stopping the Pittsburgh scrapper in his quest for a match with Louis.

McCoy can upset Conn's plans by winning the decision in the Garden battle on Friday night.

One must admire Conn's courage in agreeing to meet McCoy. The average star boxer who had fought himself into position to collide with the heavyweight champion of the world would only accept hand picked opponents.

"I feel Conn can beat any heavyweight in the world which is why we accepted the McCoy match," said Manager Johnny Ray. "If Billy didn't feel he could beat any of the other heavyweight contenders, he would not wish a bout with Joe Louis. McCoy is a good puncher and better than the average boxer, but I think Conn will beat him. Such a victory will be added proof of the fact Conn is the best fighter in the world today.

"I would not be surprised if Conn were to knock McCoy out. Billy showed terrific hitting power when he stopped Bob Pastor in 13 rounds."

Tansey Norton, former Roxbury boxer and close friend of Conn's, also believes the Pittsburgh youngster will win.

"Conn has one of the best left hands in the boxing game," said Tansey, "and I think it will smash its way through McCoy's defense. Coon should score a decisive victory."

* * *

Louis Prefers a Conn Victory

JOE LOUIS HAS written to Boston friends that he would like to see Conn win from McCoy. Louis realizes that Conn and himself would draw a $500,000 gate in New York next June. Louis has found it difficult to secure opponents who will draw that kind of money.

If McCoy defeats Conn, he will probably get a crack at Louis. The match would take place in Boston next summer as it is believed it would draw better here than in New York.

Conn was to end his training at Kelley & Hayes' Gym this afternoon. The light heavyweight champion has impressed those persons who have seen him in his local workouts. Conn is a fast, brilliant boxer, and punches from every angle.

Since the Pastor bout, Conn has become convinced he can punch better than the average run of heavyweights. You may look to see Billy trying for a kayo against McCoy.

* * *

McCoy Better Hitter Than Conn

WITHOUT MUCH fear of contradiction from people who know boxing, it can be said McCoy is a better hitter than Conn. McCoy packs destruction in his left hook, while he is also able to chill an opponent with his right.

At the age of 26 McCoy is at his fistic peak. He is a polished boxer, and around 180 pounds he is fast. It is believed that Al will scale between 179 and 181 pounds for Conn. The latter will weigh between 175 and 177 pounds.

McCoy has had experience under fire against some of the best middleweights, light heavyweights and heavyweights in the world. Al has been active in the ring during the past year, and has had the Conn bout as his objective.

"I know I have the fistic tools with which to conquer Conn," said McCoy. "This is a key bout in my career. If win, I shall get a crack at Joe Louis. Like Conn, I think Louis is over-rated. One of these nights a fighter with courage and a punch is going to beat Louis. The new champion's name may be Al McCoy."

Eastern Elevens Face Hammering

By LAWTON CARVER

Eastern football teams today looked ahead to the coming week-end with understandable misgivings, for our prestige may get one of its rudest jolts of the season in a banner lineup of intersectional gridiron skirmishing.

With Pittsburgh meeting Fordham, two of the East's best elevens thus are lined up against each other. Cornell will be engaged in strictly eastern warfare with Syracuse and the same applies to Pennsylvania, which takes on Princeton. Hence, four of the East's very best—Pitt, Fordham, Cornell and Penn—won't be involved in the intersectional strife, but many of the rest will, and the outlook isn't reassuring.

VITAL STRUGGLES

Georgia vs. Columbia, Duke vs. Colgate, Duquesne vs. Mississippi, Notre Dame vs. Carnegie Tech, Idaho vs. Boston College, Drake vs. Navy, Villanova vs. Baylor, Detroit vs. Manhattan, Michigan State vs. Temple.

Of the foregoing there are just two games that may be regarded as cinches, if there is such a thing in football—Notre Dame over Carnegie Tech and Boston College over Idaho.

Assuming that Notre Dame, with one of the great teams in its history, must beat de-emphasized Carnegie Tech, and that Boston College, seemingly a national threat, can't miss against Idaho, then the East will get an even break in those two.

But what about the rest?

Columbia is promising while Georgia is loaded and will be bounicng back from the Mississippi defeat; Colgate may get going, but faces an extremely tough foe in Duke, whipped up by the Tennessee setback; Duquesne takes on a potential Southern leader in Mississippi; illanova with high hopes goes down into the Southwest to face a dangerous Baylor eleven.

Navy seems to be under way and probably will win, but conceivably could be upset by a Drake team, which will be gunning for this one; Manhattan faces a team with considerable punch in Detroit; Temple, twice beaten, opposes a Michigan State eleven which held Michigan to a one-touchdown win and beat Purdue.

BREAKS TO COUNT

Of them all, we think the outstanding contests will be the ones between Columbia and Georgia, Duquesne and Mississippi and Michigan State and Temple, for these look like pretty tough, close contests viewed thus far in advance, with the outcome a virtual tossup.

The breaks will be extremely important in those three, and could be in the rest, too.

TUFTS LACKS RESERVES

Once a year Tufts steps out of its class and takes a shot at Brown—next Saturday this event takes place and it shapes up as usual as a "breather" for the Bruins and a headache for Lew Manly.

Football experts do not give the Jumbos a chance; in fact, nobody does except the Tufts gridmen themselves who believe in themselves to the extent that they feel they will give Tuss McLaughry's gang a busy afternoon.

Tufts, however, is sadly lacking a reserve material, and the loss of Pat Patterson, veteran fullback who had his nose broken in the Bates game, will not aid the Jumbo cause.

Grant Curtis, a Brockton boy who has been coming along rapidly, will fill in for Patterson

Knife Aids Armstrong Sight

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 (INS)—Henry Armstrong will soon be able to fight again, his physician, Dr. Alexander Schiff, assured the one-time triple titleholder's fans today after operating on Henry's left eye.

The doc trimmed away scar tissue and overhanging flesh from the left optic and will repeat on the right eye as soon as the left one heals.

Unless hitches develop, Henry should be able to resume training in about three weeks, Dr. Schiff said. The excess scar tissue impaired Henry's vision in recent bouts in addition to being exceedingly vulnerable to cutting. Henry is already signed for a return bout with Fritlz Zivic for next Jan. 17.

Red Sox Buy Louisville

Owner Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox tentatively accepted terms of Donie Bush and Frank McKinney for the outright purchase of the franchise of the Louisville Colonels of the American Association.

Yawkey, Eddie Collins and McKinney were present at the meeting, held in Yawkey's N. Y. offices. Completion of the deal is expected in a few days.

Yawkey, McKinney and Bush purchased the Louisville Club in September, 1938. The following year Louisville finished fourth but won the Association playoff and went on to capture the Little World Series from Rochester of the International League. This season the club finished fourth again, won the playoff but dropped the little series to Newark.

following: "Sir—To settle an argument. Did Walter Camp before his death select an All-Time All-America football team and, if so, were there any Dartmouth men named? . . . Myron T, Cambridge."

Ans.—No to both questions! Camp did not choose such a team, but the late Parke Davis (1871-1934), his contemperary in this picking business did! The team selected was: Ends—Frank Hinkey, Yale '95, and Huntington Hardwick, Harvard '15; tackles—Hector Cowan, Princeton '88, and Wilber Henry, W. & J. '20; guards—Walter Heffelfinger, Yale '91, and Truxton Hare, Penn '01; center—Adolph Schultz, Michigan '08; halfbacks—Harold Grange, Illinois '26, and Jim Thorpe, Carlisle '13; fullback—Ted Coy, Yale '10; quarter—Walter Eckersall, Chicago '07. Were Davis alive today he might want to revise his first draft and include Michigan's Tommy Harmon. I might add that I have never seen a better all-time end than the late George H. Lowe of Lafayette and Arlington.

HUB BEARS PLAY IN BUFFALO

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 16—Seeking their third straight victory after an opening game setback, the newly organized Boston Bears make their bow here tonight against the Indians in an American League clash.

Knowing that victory will move them out of third place into a spot one notch higher, the Bears are going to throw a wide open offense at the Indians.

Coach Eddie Casey not having scouted the Indians said this morning that he wouldn't be at all surprised if the home eleven scored on his charges during the first half before he gets time to plan a set defense.

But even an Indians' touchdown doesn't disturb Casey greatly for he figures that his new tricky offensive spread will pick up plenty of ground for the Bears.

The Boston outfit is not in the best of shape physically but the ailments are minor and everybody will see action with the possible exception of Luke Linden who has a bad charley horse.

If Luke isn't fit tonight, Carl Kaplanoff, a huge 235 pound giant from Ohio State, will start at his tackle spot.

Casey has hopes that Luke will be ready as he feels that he will need every man tonight in view of the fact that the Indians step into a tie for their place with the Bears if they should win. The Boston eleven has won two games in three starts while the Indians have taken only one decision in the same number of games.

Weymouth High Captain Back

Undefeated and untied in four starts Coach Harry Arleson's Weymouth high juggernaut will tackle strong Brookline high on the coming week end.

• • •

Scituate high is back in the win column again, after trouncing Farm and Trade to the tune of 26-0 last Saturday.

• • •

Abington high won another one last week end, this time at the expense of Bill Cronin's Hingham aggregation.

• • •

Co-Capt. Dom Nista, Weymouth tackle, is expected to be back in the lineup for the Brookline game, after being sidelined by a face injury suffered in the Belmont game two weeks ago.

• • •

Coach Arigo Latanzi, former Holy Cross great, has yet to find a winning combination at Rockland. He hopes for better results in future games.

• • •

Hanover high took a little of the fight out of John Walsh's Marshfield eleven. Hanover has a fine looking eleven.

• • •

Coach Charlie Walsh of Abington high has a real football player in George MacPhelmey, fullback and captain of the Abington outfit.

• • •

With his impressive victory over Farm and Trade last week, Coach Eddie Stewart of Scituate High hopes to keep his club on the winning side of the ledger when Scituate squares of. against Bill Ripley's Cohasset stalwarts next Saturday.

• • •

Previous to Scituate's defeat two weeks ago at the hands of Dighton High, Stewart's club had not tasted defeat since the beginning of the 1937 season.

• • •

Coach Bill Cronin's Hingham squad will oppose Whitman Saturday in an attempt to augment his initial win of the season.

• • •

Braintree High will take on Needham for their week-end contest. Braintree's record has yet to be tarnished by the stain of defeat. Two weeks ago Abington and Braintree battled to a 7-7 deadlock.

LOOKS BETTER—Al McCoy, former Boston boy who is making good in New York, is looking so well in his Stillman Gym workouts in New York that some Gotham money is backing McCoy to upset Billy Conn who is recognized as the lone "white hope." They meet at the Boston Garden Friday night.

McCoy's Great Workouts Cause Odds to Shorten

Following some inside information, direct from Stillman's gym in New York, there has been a noticeable narrowing of the odds on the Goodwin A. C. fistic classic Friday night at the Boston Garden, bringing together 175-pound champion Irish Billy Conn and Al McCoy, in a 10-round scrap in which no title is involved since both are now battling as heavyweights.

Word from Stillman's, where McCoy has been in training for some three weeks, having been warned in advance that he would get a shot at Conn, is that the French-Canadian veteran is boxing and hitting in the fashion he displayed several years ago. At that time he was one of the greatest fighters in the land. The experts said he couldn't miss.

GREW TOO QUICK

McCoy did miss, however. He grew too swiftly from a light-heavy to a heavyweight and the change sapped some of his speed and slowed his punching. He looked somewhat like the old McCoy in his last fight here when he beat Mello Bettina, the gent from whom Conn took the 175-pound crown in one of Billy's toughest bouts.

Any kind of an improvement on the fight he made with Bettina will make McCoy a most dangerous opponent for Conn.

McCOY DUE TONIGHT

Report from Gotham is that McCoy will most certainly improve on the fight with Bettina and this is why several authorities are hopping on the McCoy bandwagon. They do not come right out and state that McCoy will win but they are hedging and giving McCoy a bright chance and this is an indication of a fight in view.

McCoy is due in Boston tonight. Conn today finished off heavy work at Kelley & Hayes where he's been for a week. McCoy apparently will have at least a five-pound pull in the weights, an unusual situation. McCoy generally gives away plenty.

MAT SHOW AT ARENA TONIGHT

There will be a double wrestling windup as Paul Bowser opens the wrestling season at the Arena tonight.

Steve Casey of Ireland, former world's champion, will have Gino Garibaldi of Italy as an opponent in one of the feature matches, while in the other "Man Mountain" Dean will collide with Gene Bowman, former Tennessee football star.

Casey has kept in condition during the past two months, rowing with his brothers, Jim and Tom, on the Charles. As a result of Steve's rowing activities it is likely he will soon meet Russell Codman, Jr., i na match sculling race for a side bet of $1000.

"Man Mountain" Dean is also gunning for a crack at The Angel, and says he will start by beating Bowman.

MAIN BOUTS

Steve (Crusher) Casey vs. Gino Garibaldi.
Man Mountain Dean vs. Gene Bowman.

SEMI-FINAL

Leo Numa vs. Jim Casey.

PRELIMINARIES

Rudy Dusek vs. Tom Casey.
Lord Albert Mills vs. Everett Kibbons.

DATE 1940 ____________

As evidence of the far-reaching effects of early notices about this shooting classic comes a team entry all the way from St. Louis, Mo. It was filed by W. F. Sewell, Jr., coach of the Walter J. Hatzfeld Sons of American Legion No. 35, on behalf of this well-known Mid-Western organization.

TRAINS SONS OF VETS

Tufts Eager to End 48-Year Brown Jinx

Eager to bounce back into the win column after the Colgate defeat of last week, the Brown grid squad is drilling hard to meet a strong Tufts eleven this Saturday at Providence.

Both teams will enter the game with records of two wins and one loss, Tufts having downed Bowdoin and Middlebury, before bowing to Bates, last week, while Brown conquered Wesleyan and Rhode Island prior to the Colgate defeat.

The Jumbo eleven is one of the strongest assembled in many years and is admittedly hopeful of ending a Brown domination of the series which has lasted 48 years. In the 51-year-old series, Brown leads, 21-2 in games won. Tufts elevens scored their only triumphs in 1891 and 1892.

Despite the Brown preponderance of victories, the Jumbos have made several serious bids

The selections are listed on the chart here which is ready to be filled out by the contestant. Simply place an (X) in the space nearest the name of the team you think will win, or if you predict a tie game place the letter (T) in the spaces nearest the names of the tying teams.

If no perfect list of solutions is entered, $50.00 will be awarded to the contestant having the nearest number of selections correct and should two or more contestants tie for this prize the tieing contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the award. A prize of $25.00 will be awarded the person submitting the second largest number of correct solutions and should two or more contestants tie for this prize tieing contestant submitting the most nearly correct average scores will receive the prize. Twenty-five awards of $1.00 each will be given the twenty-five contestants whose entries contain in succession, the next largest number of correct solutions and whose average scores most nearly match the actual scores of the games.

N. H. PICKED TO BEAT ACES

DURHAM, N. H., Oct. 16—Those surprising New Hampshire Wildcats have every intention of running up their third straight victory of the season here next Saturday afternoon with Springfield as the victim.

The Wildcats, supposed an ordinary club this fall, got away to a hard luck start when Colby whipped them 21 to 19 but they came right back the following week and beat Bates. Last Saturday, the Wildcats came from behind to take the University of Maine by a touchdown in a big upset.

Springfield is next and New Hampshire is picked to win.

Holy Cross Polishes Attack for Violets

WORCESTER, Oct. 16 (AP)—The Holy Cross football squad drilled for nearly an hour in a driving rain as Coach Joe Sheeketski polished his attack for Saturday's game with N. Y. U. at New York.

Minor injuries kept several regulars from practice, among them Capt. Jack Kellar, Joe Osmanski, Tom Alberghini, Jim Scondras, Adam Krewoticz and Kevin Mulcahy. All, except Osmanski and Mulcahy, are expected to play against N. Y. U. however.

Harvard Scouts Report Army Better Than in '39

Harvard scouts who attended the Army-Cornell game say that the Cadets have a far better team than last year and a team which is capable of upsetting Harvard this Saturday.

Coach Bill Wood of the Cadets took his team to play Lou Little's Columbia outfit in a practice game and the Lions asked Wood to call off the dogs. It was no slaughter, but Army was pushing the Light Blue all over Baker Field.

The Army system of football requires a good triple threat man in the important tailback position, which the servicemen employ from a deep position. Army has three good men available for the heavy duty position in Henry Mazur, Jere Maupin, and "Needle" Hatch.

PLAYED FOR B. C. FROSH

The Army invasion with all its color and fanfare will be a homecoming for Mazur. Mazur is well known to local fans for his brilliant scholastic career and more recently as the outstanding back on the Boston College frosh team two years ago. Coach Frank Leahy hasn't yet gotten over the departure of Mazur for the Hudson plains.

Workhorse Harry Wilson, Monk Meyer, and Cris Cagle were greats at West Point and Mazur is headed to take his place among them as the Army greats. Henry didn't get a chance to show his wares against Cornell because of a heavy cold, but he is ready to go now and will be in the starting lineup against the Crimson.

FUMBLES TOO MUCH

The other two outstanding backs at West Point are Maupin and Hatch. Maupin, a soph last season, was figured to be the soldiers' biggest gun, but a case of fumbling jitters rendered him useless. In the games this year, Maupin appears to have overcome his weakness of last year. The chances are that he will alternate with Mazur unless Mazur completely baffles the Cantabs.

"Needle" Hatch, the only player born and brought up at West Point, will be playing his final game of his career against Harvard and those who saw him perform last year at the Stadium know that he needs little introduction to local fans. He is a great passer and a better than average open field runner.

AYRES IN FORM

Coach Dick Harlow of Harvard has been devoting a great deal of time to concoct a Harvard defense able to halt the Army aerials. It is also expected that the Crimsons will use the air route freely in quest of their first major win of the season.
